CLEVELAND GIRL KILLED

Meets Death as Truck Overturns on U. S. Route 42 in Ashland County.

Richland County's 1941 Traffic Toll

This date last Year 2

Richland county's 1941 accident death toll jumped to ten last night when Coyne Hartz, 20, R. D. 3, Shelby, was killed after his motorcycle crashed into a ditch on a a Plymouth township road about three miles northwest of Shelby.

At this time last year, only two persons had been killed in Richland county traffic accidents.

A Cleveland girl was also killed on Route 42 near Ashland when a truck in which she was riding overturned.

Hartz died of a fractured skull and broken neck when his cycle crashed into a ditch after getting out of control. He was thrown clear of the bike and thrown against a piece of tile, state patrolmen reported. Hartz was on his way home from Shelby when the accident occurred.

The other vicinity death was reported when a truck of asphalt turned over in a ditch. Shirley Lee DeLong, 12, was killed instantly of a compound skull fracture when she was caught beneath the overturned truck cab. Charles DeLong, her father, said the truck crashed after he had swerved to avoid hitting a passing motorist.

The cab went into the ditch and the tank-truck filled with asphalt turned over the cab. Dr. George Emery, Ashland county coroner gave a verdict of accidental death.

Renew Work At Chalmers Plant Today

U. S. Steel Continues In Operation; Soft Coal Mines Idle.

BULLETIN

DETROIT — (INS) — Federal Judge Arthur J. Tuttle today opened hearings on a Ford Motor company's motion to make permanent an order against the UAW-CIO restraining the union from molesting workers at the strike-bound Rouge plant in Dearborn.

(By Associated Press)

The Allis-Chalmers factory at Milwaukee swung back into production of vitally needed military and naval orders today, while the United States Steel corporation's gigantic plants functioned normally after the CIO withdrew an order which would have stopped work at midnight.

Some 400,000 soft coal miners remained idle, however, as a result of a snag in negotiations over a new labor contract.

Philip Murray, CIO president, went to Detroit for conferences on the Ford strike. President Roosevelt, at the request of Governor Van Wagoner of Michigan, cancelled a conference in Washington with Murray on the whole labor situation.

Stephen Early, presidential secretary, said the president and Murray would meet after the Detroit parley was included.

To make up for time lost during a 76-day strike, the Allis-Chalmers plant went on a 24-hour-a-day basis so the $45,000,000 worth of defense orders could be expediated.

Under the settlement agreement, worked out with the assistance of the national defense mediation board, an impartial referee will be named to arbitrate disputes, wage negotiations will be continued, and no strike or lockout may be held within a year.

The threatened walkout at 69 plants of U. S. Steel was averted by an agreement between CIO steel workers and the management to continue, April 15, currently deadlocked negotiations for a new contract. Union demands include wage increases, union shop and dues check-off.

Shortly before announcement of the decision to continue the U. S. Steel negotiations, National Steel company announced it was granting 10 cents an hour wage increases to approximately 20,000

SEARCH COAST FOR MISSING BOMBER, CREW

10 Aboard Giant Navy Patrol Ship Due at Rhode Island Base Yesterday Noon.

BELIEVED DOWN AT SEA

Unidentified Mystery Message Heard; Navy, Coast Guard, Other Ships Join Quest.

BULLETIN

NORFOLK, Va.—(AP)—Naval authorities report that occupants of navy planes had sighted at sea about noon today the wreckage of a big naval patrol bomber missing since yesterday morning.

(By United Press)

LAKEHURST, N. J.—Navy, coast guard and merchant ships searched 500 miles of the middle Atlantic coast today for a PBY-1 navy patrol bomber, missing with 10 men.

The giant plane took off from Chambers Field, Norfolk, at 8:35 a. m. yesterday. No word has been heard of it since. It should have reached its destination. Quonset Point, R. I., a naval operating base near Newport, at noon.

It was believed to be down somewhere in the Atlantic. Its course would have taken it over the eastern shore of Maryland, but after that its journey was all over water

The lost plane was fully equipped with rubber boats, flares, emergency food and other equipment. It is designated patrol bomber 4-J-N. It had both receiving and sending radio equipment, with call letters 167-L.

The search began last night when the coast guard and the navy sent out general orders for all ships at sea to keep on the look-out for the missing craft, which was piloted by Ensign G. N. Blackburn, a reserve officer from Lenni Mills, Pa.

At 4 p. m. yesterday, the Norfolk naval air station received a mysterious message reporting an airplane down at sea. But the message was unidentified, and there was no way to tell where it came from, who sent it or to what plane it referred.

The navy announced in Washington that the following men, in

Athens Reports Armies Holding Fast at Rupel

Nazi Parachutists Captured; Germans Reach Aegean Sea on Right Flank As Yugoslavs Retreat Exposing Allies in 'Hot Corner'

BULLETIN

ISTANBUL—(UP)—Greek diplomatic sources reported today that German troops have reached the Aegean sea at Alexanddroupolis, in eastern Macedonia, cutting communications between Turkey and Greece. Alexandroupolis is the easternmost Aegean port in Greek Macedonia and is only 18 miles from the Turkish frontier.

BULLETIN

BERLIN—(INS)—Unofficial information in Berlin this afternoon reported that German troops had occupied the strategic south central Yugoslavian city of Skoplje at the head of the Vardar river.

(By Associated Press)

A violent battle between German and Greek troops in the hills around Nevrokopi, in northeastern Greece, was reported today to have turned in favor of the Greeks—and even Hitler's high command acknowledged "tough resistance" in the twin Balkan offensives.

The Nazi high command asserted, however, that both campaigns were "progressing effectively."

Belgrade, the capital of Yugoslavia, was fire-bombed a fifth time by the German Luftwaffe.

Athens dispatches said the Greeks were holding fast at Rupel Pass against German armored columns attempting to smash their way to the vital ~~Struma river~~ valley.

German parachutists were reported to have failed in an attempt to drop behind the Greek lines and cut communications, with 130 'chutists captured and others killed.

Greek front line dispatches told of ravines littered with German slain, smashed tanks and armored cars.

In one valley, it was said, the Greeks let the Germans advance without opposition and then cut loose with heavy artillery and machine-gun fire from the forest and pillboxes hidden on the hillsides.

The Greeks, however, apparently suffered a serious blow in the reported withdrawal of Yugoslav troops from the Balkan "hot corner" zone, exposing the Greek left flank; while on the right flank, Nazi panzer columns knifed 50 miles south to the Aegean sea between Greece and Turkey.

The sudden departure of the Yugoslav troops—in southern Yugogoslavia near the Greek and Bulgarian frontiers—was not explained.

A Greek general staff communique said briefly:

"Yugoslav troops fighting in southern Serbia withdrew, uncovering the left flank of our troops, who were heroically fighting on the border line.

"Despite this, our soldiers continue to fight with great self sac-

'Baby Dumpling' Gives A Tip On Eventful Week

This is the big week for the Dagwood Bumsteads of comic strip fame—this week Dagwood will undergo the harrowing experience of becoming a father.

The first hint of coming events can be found in today's "Blondie" strip in The News-Journal as Dagwood finds Baby Dumpling, the Bumstead's precocious child, preparing to catch the stork upon its arrival.

Baby Dumpling has made a trap of odds and ends he found about the garage.

Mrs. Bumstead, better known as Blondie to readers of The News-Journal, will become the mother of a daughter, according to the advance dope from Chic Young, who draws the strip. But Dagwood doesn't know it'll be a girl yet.

There will probably be more hints of things to come as the stork takes an occasionally reconnaissance flight over the Bumstead domicile.

SUPPORT-SWAP?

Attempts To Secure Line-Up of Willkie, Dewey Reported.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Attempts were reported under way today to effect a working agreement under which Wendell L. Willkie would support Thomas E. Dewey for the Republican nomination for governor of New York in 1942 in return for backing by Dewey if Willkie bids for the Republican presidential nomination in 1944.

Those who have been working to bring about such an arrangement were said to be actuated not alone by interest in the two prospective candidates but in advancing Republican chances generally in the 1942 off-year elections.

They were said to feel that a harmoniously-conducted campaign in New York might go a long way toward solidifying the party's ranks elsewhere.

$64,375 SET AS FUND GOAL

Community Fund Budget Committee Fixes Total for Dirve To Open April 28.

Goal for Mansfield's 1941 Community fund drive has been set at $64,375, Robert C. Remy, vice president, announced today following a meeting of the budget committee last night.

The goal is $2,110 higher than the fund raised last year when Mansfielders subscribed $62,265 toward a goaol of $57,500. Mansfield's 1941 campaign opens April 28.

Budget requests of the 11 participating agencies of the Fund, together with Fund administration totalled $87,207. This total was reduced to come within the goal figure, but all agencies, with the exception of Mansfield General hospital were allocated greater amounts than they received in 1940.

One new agency, the Mansfield Dental clinic, was added to the Fund this year, and was granted a budget of $.050. An additional fund, Student Aid, was also set up which will be operated under the Milk Fund

Councilman Answers Locke's Claim Council Attempts To 'Embarrass Administration.'

Smarting under charges made yesterday by Mayor William J. Locke that city council was playing politics "with the intention of embarrassing the administration," a Democratic member of council struck back today.

Fred Miller, chairman of the finance committee, provoked by a letter from the mayor containing the charges, declared "council has never played politics with the police department."

"No pressure group or political intrigue will loosen the purse-strings of the city pocket-book while I am chairman of the finance committee," he added.

Miller went on the say that council has approved many items that have improved and expanded the police department. He listed among them the establishment of an identification bureau, an extra record clerk, $1,000 for a more powerful radio transmitter

DENIES SLAYING

Coshocton Youth Contradicts Story of Accusers.

Owen Bickel, 21, of Coshocton, allegedly one of three youths who slugged three Mansfield women in purse-snatchings early this year, today denied slaying Mrs. Alphonse Foley, 39, during an attempted purse-snatching in Youngstown in February.

Bickel, extradited from Kalamazoo, Mich., last week where he was captured, was reported to have admitted a series of purse snatchings and sluggings but denied being the triggerman in the Youngstown affair.

Bickel issued his denial today in the face of statements by Harold Cox, 21, self-admitted purse snatching accomplice and two other companions that he fired the gun which killed Mrs. Foley, mother of nine children.

Mrs. Cox, 14, and Eileen Sullivan, 16, both of Cambridge, have also been implicated as accomplices in the series of robberies throughout the northeastern part of the state.

LIAISON: U. S. Navy Sets Up Plan To Aid British Buying

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox today ordered Undersecretary James V. Forrestal to visit Britain to establish liaison between the U. S. navy and the British admiralty in carrying out naval purchase and repair problems under the lend-lease act.

The exact date of Forrestal's departure was not announced, but Knox said he would be in England in about two weeks.

"Under the lease-lend act," his announcement said, "the navy department is handling purchases in America of materials for the British navy and also is to undertake repairs here for British war vessels.

"Efforts are being made as rapidly as possible to establish a suitable uniformity in naval equipment so that purchases and repairs may be expedited."

The naval phase of the British aid program was thus thrust into the forefront of long-range plans to assist the democracies. Initial war-aid from the American "arsenal of democracy" was en route to Yugoslavia, to help the Allied armies on the Balkan battlefronts.

There was considerable speculation on Forrestal's London assignment in view of recurrent reports that steps are about to be formulated to relieve part of the strain on British shipping, possibly through some form of U. S. naval assistance—not necessarily convoys.

There has been some talk of the possible release of additional

SURPRISE: Panzers Launch Attacks Across Mountain Area

(By United Press)

BERLIN—German panzer divisions, supported by Alpine mountaineers and flame-throwing storm troops, launched a surprise assault across the mountains of southern Yugoslavia, German sources reported today.

The attack has been directed over the difficult mountain terrain of the Rhodope mountains in western Bulgaria it was said

(This would indicate a German attempt to cut across the southern tip of Yugoslavia and sever communications between the Greeks and their Yugoslav allies. A report from Athens indicated that this advance has penetrated about 18 miles, bringing the Germans within 15 miles of the vital Vardar river.)

The high command reported that the drives against Yugoslavia and Greece are making steady progress with the capture of numerous prisoners and considerable quantities of war materials

It gave virtually no names of places beyond the revelation of further heavy air attacks upon Belgrade.

However, the reports from German propaganda soldier-reporters accompanying the advance Nazi troop units indicated that one important German attack is being directed down the Struma valley while other Nazi forces attack westward into Yugoslavia.

Informed German sources said that there had been no contact as yet between the British expeditionary force in Greece and the German troops.

Pupils Protest Short Study Periods, Get Action Promise

Protests from Senior high school pupils that teachers were not complying with study and recitation schedules in the class room obtained a promise of quick action today from the school administration.

The protests came at a mass meeting of pupils called by the Student Representative Council yesterday to discuss matters pertaining to student self-government and school administration Teachers did not attend

The study and recitation schedules were the subjects of major discussion at the session, S. R. C. members said.

Pupils complained that they were not being given the required time for study and that some teachers use the entire class period for recitation, instead of using half the period for study and the other half for recitation. Class schedules call for an equal division, half the period for study and half for recitation.

Principal Jesse Beer today said

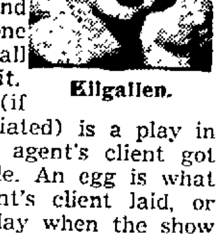
BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

The Legends of Broadway.

No. 4—The Agents)

THESE are the mother hens of Broadway. Cluck-clucking all day long about their brood, they are good for more words per minute, more adjectives per hour, than any other brand of characters to be found in Lindy's. Conversationally they deal in two major barnyard products, turkeys and eggs—and in one major baseball product, the hit.



Kilgallen.

A turkey (if you are uninitiated) is a play in which another agent's client got the leading role. An egg is what the other agent's client laid, or will certainly lay when the show gets to Broadway regardless of what he looked like in Boston. A hit is what an agent's client's show would have been if it had only had two good socko tunes and Buddy De Sylva producing it.

These are fabulous boys, these agents. They are first nighters, and last-nighters, inventors of the sales talk and chief exponents of the "quick con." They are Broadway in a loud suit. No star is complete without one.

Although his friends insist he booked the show that played the Ford Theatre the night Abraham Lincoln was shot, Harry Bestry swears this is an exaggeration. He is a blond fellow with a curly yellow mustache and a Viking look.

Although he is an expert golfer, a fine dancer, and an intimate friend of the Shuberts (any one of which might have kept him young), Harry holds that it was the laughs he got out of agenting that prevented him from growing old. The checks for 10 per cent had nothing to do with it.

Tops in his laugh book is his experience with a famous stage star, whom Harry set at a tremendous salary to head a roster of celebrities in a Warner Brothers' supercolossal film. He put the lad on a plane, and gave him a thousand dollars to carry him through until the first Warner Brothers' payday.

Three days later, the actor dispatched a frantic telegram asking for money. Bestry wired back:

"What happened to the chunk of dough I gave you?"

And the actor replied immediately:

"Your telegram received. Ate it for breakfast. Please send money."

Bestry grinned at this.

"Conservative fellow," he commented. "He kept the wire to ten words!"

Bill Miller became an agent the hard way, if you believe what he tells you over the pinochle table.

Bill used to hoof at benefits in the small Jersey town where his father owned a dance hall. Between benefits, he booked bands and acts in his father's place.

One night his dad told him not to worry about an outfit for the following week-end, because the famous Dixieland Jazz Band had just been engaged. The night the Dixielands opened, young Bill—a bit peeved—asked the manager of the renowned band how a young fellow could get into the bigtime, booking real acts. The manager told him, in a kindly way, that it was first necessary to know real people.

Bill was struck with an idea. He offered to dance with the band for nothing if he could travel with it—and the manager accepted him. Within six months, Miller had his own dance act. Within a year, he was playing the Palace.

Three years of hoofing in the big time and Miller was set. He knew every big act in the country, personally. So he quit the bow-and encore business to become an amazingly successful ten per center.

Anecdotes about Max Hart are so many that, if collected, they would easily fill as much space as an autobiography by William Saroyan.

But the familiar fable that the Stem loves is the one about the evening when a struggling agent asked Max to catch one of his acts at the Hippodrome and afterwards give him a little booking advice.

When they got there, the act turned out to be one starring three trained seals.

Hart's advice to the little booker has come down the years as a Broadway classic.

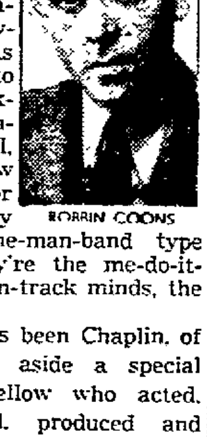
"My friend," he said, "give the seals back to the Eskimos. Take those three barrels of herrings and open a good delicatessen store near the Palace. Heaven knows, we need one."

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—It's discouraging, that's what it is.

A plain, old-fashioned genius hardly gets a nod any more. Nobody grants him even one awe-struck "colossal." Nobody points him out on the street, practically nobody asks for his autograph. It's awful, that's what it is.



ROBBIN COONS

The garden variety of Hollywood genius has been pushed into the dark background by a sensational, colossal, stupendous new species, more or less reverently dubbed the one-man-band type of genius. They're the me-do-it-alls, the umpteen-track minds, the geniuses.

There's always been Chaplin, of course. Setting aside a special niche for a fellow who acted, wrote, directed, produced and whipped up musical scores, there was still plenty of sun for the plain, merely colossal geniuses who stuck to one last—at least as long as the contract lasted.

But look around now. Orson Welles, they say, contributed so much to so many departments of "Citizen Kane" that his fingers itched when he saw the janitor get his broom to sweep out the stage.

But some of the older folks are doing pretty well, at that. Preston Sturges, at 43, is not the Young Genius that Welles is at 25—but Preston's one-man-band is none the less impressive. He writes, directs, but doesn't act, and Paul Jones has been his producer. His talent is colossal enough, since the stories and screenplay and dialogue of both "The Great McGinty" and "Christmas in July" were done by Sturges without aid or hindrance from 50 other writers. He can cook, too.

Many other directors qualify, informally, for the two-way genius rating by contributing to the shaping of their scripts, in conference with their writers, even though they themselves get no screen credit. Frank Capra needn't bow to Orson or to Preston, nor need Alfred Hichcock, Edward H. Griffith, William Wellman, Tay Garnett and John Ford are others who invariably keep a finger in the script pie. Gregory Ratoff not only writes but acts and directs as well. Ben Hecht, usually content to write, joined the three-way genius ranks (writer-producer-director) with "Angels Over Broadway."

House Turns Down Exemption on Homes

IMPORT CONTROL SEEN AS NEXT DEFENSE MOVE

Officials Predict Setting Up of System For Restriction on Foreign Merchandise

WASHINGTON—Highly placed officials said today creation of a system of import control might constitute the next step in the government's rapidly expanding economic defense program.

Under this system a government control agency would be authorized to determine what foreign merchandise should be admitted to the United States and what should be excluded.

However, the plan was regarded as so drastic, since it might exclude such items as Japanese silk, that the officials were unwilling to predict when, if at all, it might be instituted. So far, they explained, it is merely in the discussion stage.

"Economic defense" is a name officials give to any sort of economic action expected to help the United States and the British allies and to impede the war effort of the Axis powers.

Principal evidences of the program to date have been the "freezing" of $4,500,000,000 worth of assets held in this country by 13 European nations which have come under the domination of either the Axis powers of Russia; institution of suits to break up alleged German influence in patent monopolies on articles vital to the national defense, particularly magnesium and optical instruments; setting up of export controls which restrict the shipment of scrap iron, aviation gasoline and hundreds of other items; and Export-Import bank loans to Argentina and other Latin American countries to facilitate their co-operation with both the United States and Great Britain.

The recent seizure of 69 German, Italian and Danish ships in American ports also is considered in official circles to fit into the economic defense picture.

What officials call "preclusive buying" of strategic war materials to prevent their purchase by Axis agents has been advocated as another economic move.

Lewy was about to enter a taxicab when one of the bandits gave him a push, while a second snatched his brief case. They leaped into an automobile driven by a third man, and sped away. Lewy fired after the car.

SENATE PASSES JAMESON BILL

Measure To Create State and Local Defense Councils Approved 31 to 0.

State Senator Joseph Jameson of Lorain last night saw his first bill, introduced to create state and local defense councils to coordinate the defense program in Ohio, passed unanimously by the Senate 31-0.

Jameson's bill would set up a state council composed of the governor, seven other state officials and six appointed members. Originally, the Lorain men called for councils to be set up in every city, county and township but later amended it to include only the state and district groups.

Provisions for setting up of the local councils was not made clear but it was expected that the house, which will consider it next, would work out these details.

Another bill of Jameson's, one which would bring refunds to counties for court costs and the transportation of criminals in state cases, was scheduled to be given a hearing by the senate finance committee today.

A bill, introduced by State Senator P. M. Rogers of Lorain, which would increase the annual assessment on utility concerns from $200,000 to $275,000 for the support of the state commission, was killed in the senate utilities committee by a 5-2 vote.

George C. McConnaughey, chairman of the committee charged that the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric company had "tried to make a deal" with him to obtain repeal by the legislature of a statute requiring utilities to furnish any and all data it demands.

Up and Down THE STREET

If anyone were awakened by the continuous blowing of an automobile horn today at about 6:15 a. m. between the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company and downtown Mansfield they can blame it on the bus driven by Paul Bader on that run. The horn became shorted and blew for approximately 15 minutes during the time that it took the bus to come from the Tire company to the downtown area. Bader finally had to take the bus to the station where he exchanged it for another one while the horn was repaired.

Otho McCormick, 66 Stewart avenue, is trying to figure out what anyone wanted with a five-foot piece of his new garden hose. He reported to police yesterday that when he went out to the garage to get his car he found the hose, which he bought recently, with a section cut off lying on the garage floor.

A red glow in the northeastern sky last night sent a number of Mansfield motorists out on a hunt for a "big fire". Going out near the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company, they found a grass fire blazing away in a field on the Olivesburg road. No property was threatened and no alarm was disaptched to the Mansfield fire department.

Several too exuberant students, campaigning for their favorite queen candidate for the Mansfield relays, caused no little disturbance last night on Park avenue west. Police are investigating the "egging" of several cars between Walnut and Mulberry street. It is believed that the students took the eggs from a nearby dairy store and bombarded the cars.

PENSIONERS DEMONSTRATE AT COLUMBUS

Corral Majority Votes But Not Enough To Pass Change In Old Age Pension Law.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—The old age pensioners demonstrated last night a powerful influence over the Ohio house of representatives, but it was not quite potent enough.

The pensioners, championed by a Democrat, corralled more than a majority of the representatives in behalf of a proposal to prohibit the state from seizing their homesteads. The rules, however, required three-fifths.

By a vote of 70 yes to 47 no the house rejected a resolution which would have submitted to the voters of the state a constitutional amendment embracing the homestead exemption. Eighty-three favorable votes were needed for its adoption.

Under the present system the state has a prior claim to the property of an aid for aged recipient and upon his death may sell it to recover the amount of pensions paid plus four per cent interest.

Rep. John C. Hess (D-Stark), author of the resolution, asserted that the present arrangement merely provides loans—not relief—to the aged."

Fifty-six Democrats and 14 Republicans voted for the resolution. Against it were 46 Republicans and one Democrat.

Rep. Lody Huml (D-Cleveland), the lone Democrat, termed the proposal a false and futile gesture." He contended "the state can't take the property now."

The senate also approved unanimously a measure obligating the state to pay up to half the cost of soldiers' relief. The expense now borne by the counties, runs about $1,800,000 a year. The state welfare director would determine how much the state should share. His bill, too, goes to the house.

The house, disposing of the pension resolution, then proceeded to complete enactment of legislation appropriating $618,500 for the care of insane patients for whom there is no space in state institutions.

It also passed a bill permitting the use of fuel oil in mine machinery and sent it to the senate.

Speaker William McCulloch announced that the biennial appropriation bill, carrying $351,800,000 for operation of the state government in 1941-42, would be brought up for a vote in the house tomorrow afternoon.

The senate health committee approved proposed legislation empowering the state board of barber examiners to establish minimum prices and opening and closing hours for barbers. Those who refused to conform would become liable to suspension or revocation of their licenses.

The health committee also recommended for passage a bill requiring physicians to make blood tests of pregnant women, a part of the campaign against venereal disease. Women who declined to submit to a test would have to set forth their reasons in an affidavit to the state health department.

Plan New Meeting On Status of 3.2 Beer After Talks

COLUMBUS —(UP)— The state liquor control committee planned today to hold another meeting at a date yet to be fixed on legislation to prevent local option elections from affecting the sale of 3.2 beer in Ohio.

The committee's decision was made after hearing arguments between S. P. McNaught, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, and Thomas J. Donnelly, secretary of the State Federation of Labor, which favors the legislation. Donnelly claimed labor supported the measure as a "move toward temperance."

McNaught charged that 3.2 Beer is intoxicating and said that if the legislature passed the legislation it would "stir up a hornet's nest." He accused brewery interests of being "selfish and grabbing." McNaught was supported in his arguments by Dr. Howard Hyde Russell, founder of the Anti-Saloon league.

Donnelly replied to their arguments with the question that "if under federal law and state prohibition, 3.2 beer was non-intoxicating, how can you make it intoxicating now?"

ARMY RECRUITS NEED NOT FEAR BULGY UNIFORMS

Draftees In Service Today Measured For Complete Soldier's Outfit.

FORT BLISS, Tex.—(U.P.)—Army recruits need not fear they will be forced to wear misfitting apparel as part of their uniforms.

A tour through the draftee induction center at Fort Bliss, typical of the nation's military reception posts, shows that the government has missed no details in clothing soldiers with an eye toward comfort and efficiency.

The ill-fitting footwear that provoked World war jokes is unheard of, and that goes for the rest of the soldier's outfit, too. From hat to shoes he is carefully measured and issued correct sizes.

Upon entering the huge warehouse at Fort Bliss, where $6,000,000 worth of equipment is stored, a soldier is speedily measured and accurately sized-up for everything he wears. His word for size is not taken.

The sizes as shown by the measuring tape are recorded on a slip handed to the soldier.

Next he is taken to a block long counter where a clerk begins to issue equipment, all personal articles, in sizes corresponding to those on the slip.

First the soldier receives an overcoat which is laid spread out on the counter. He pulls the coat along the counter and the clerk piles the other clothing on it.

When he reaches the counter's end the soldier has his complete wardrobe. He picks it up in his arms and walks out a nearby door and is directed to his quarters.

The entire operation, from the time a soldier is measured until he has received his last article of clothing, takes less than five minutes.

At wholesale cost each soldier's personal articles cost about $65.

Couples Urged to Study Marriage More Carefully

BOSTON—(U.P.)—Dr. A. Warren Stearns, Tufts College Medical school dean, believes a happy marriage "is a matter of weighing assets and liabilities" and recommends every person getting married obtain a case history of the other party.

Dr. Stearns advises:

"Don't marry an undesirable man on the basis that you are going to make a good husband out of him.

"A confirmed bachelor is not a good prospect—generally something wrong with him.

"But that's not true of an old maid. She can't go out after a mate the way a man can."

MINE RE-OPENED

WEST PORTAL, N. J.—(U.P.)—A Jugtown Mountain iron ore mine, inactive since the Lake Superior deposits were opened more than 60 years ago, has resumed operations.

According to Marry M. Roche of Dover, a consulting engineer and an official of the newly incorporated concern, reconditioning of the century-old mine is being rushed, and at top operation it is expected to produce 800 tons of ore daily.

Defense Plot.

An amazing plot to smash America's defense by means of a secret submarine base is unfolded in "The Phantom Submarine," opening Wednesday at the Park. Although pure fiction the story of the picture is thought-provoking as Bruce Bennett enacts an adventurer trying to recover a fortune in gold sunk in the Pacific, and Anita Louise portrays a girl reporter who accompanies him on the trip. Oscar O'Shea and Pedro de Cordoba are in the cast. "Misbehaving Husbands," with Esther Muir, Ralph Baird, and Harry Langdon is the second feature.

It will be heard again in "Wyoming," now showing at the Majestic as Marjorie Main, a lady blacksmith, lays seige to the heart of Wallace Beery while the latter is in jail after a conflict with cattle rustlers. Beery and Leo Carrillo play train robbers who get into trouble with a band of cattle thieves headed by Joseph Calleia. Stirring story of the days of the old South, "The Howards of Virginia," showing on the same bill, has a cast headed by Cary Grant, Martha Scott, and Sir Cedric Hardwicke.

Homespun Humor.

The homespun humor of Clarence Buddington Kelland's stories has been transferred to the screen in "Scattergood Baines," first of a series of motion pictures based on these stories, opening Wednesday at the Madison. Guy Kibbee plays the astute storekeeper and all fictional characters have been retained. Emma Dunn plays "Scattergood's" wife, Carol Hughes and John Archer supply the love interest, and Willie Best, colored comedian, has the role of "Hipp." Kent Taylor and Wendy Barrie will be seen in the co-feature "Repent at Leisure."

Criminal Adventures.

Girl, 13, Attends 24 Schools In Fifteen Cities

NEW ORLEANS —(U.P.)— Thirteen-year-old Beverly Strickland, who has attended 24 schools in 15 cities, would like to settle down.

Although she never has lost ground because of her numerous transfers, Beverly has become confused at times. After she finished the seventh grade at Louisville, Ky., she began junior high school at Memphis, Tenn. A few weeks later her family moved to Nashville, where grammar schools have eighth grades, and Beverly "went back" to grammar school.

Then the Strickland family came to New Orleans and the girl became a freshman in high school because there are no eighth grades and no junior high school here.

There's one silver lining: Beverly need never fear a geography test.

STEAL MARKERS

HARRISBURG, Pa.—(U.P.)—Rising metal prices have placed a new problem on Pennsylvania police. Despite heavy mountings, thieves are taking metal markers placed at historic sites throughout the state.

To combat vandalism, the State Historical Society has notified the state motor police to keep a close watch on metal sales. Recently the commission photographed all the markers so they can be easily traced.

4-H HELPS DEFENSE

LAFAYETTE, Ind.—(U.P.)—Four-H clubs, a national movement for rural youth, expect to do their share in any national emergency. APPOINTMENT OF FIREMAN OKED BY COUNCILMEN

Kenneth Hageman Named To Shelby Position By Mayor Morris.

SHELBY—Appointment of Kenneth Hageman by Mayor W. R. Morris as a junior fireman in the Shelby fire department was confirmed by city council Monday night at its regular semi-monthly meeting.

Hageman, who has been a volunteer member of the department for a number of years, succeeds Harley Evans, who resigned earlier this year to accept a position at the Ohio Seamless Tube Co. Hageman, who will receive a salary of $100 per month for the first year, was high on a list certified as eligible for the post by the civil service board recently.

Council also approved a suggestion made by Mayor Morris that a secret poll be taken of downtown merchants to determine if they wanted Main street closed for the Shelby Community Street fair.

The fair board took an open poll last year and found that majority of the merchants wanted the fair which brings thousands of persons here annually. Merchants who have opposed the closing of Main street this year contend the poll was not fair. They said merchants were hesitant to vote against the fair because of business reasons, and not because they wanted the fair.

Hugh Hildebrant, president of Citizens bank, and L. A. Dennis, president of Shelby Mutual Plate Glass and Casualty Insurance company, were present at the meeting and spoke against closing Main street. They pointed out that delay of fire apparatus in getting by concessions on the street might mean a serious loss in a downtown fire.

C. L. Beal, superintendent of the concessions for the fair, who was present at the meeting, declined comment.

Beal was present at the meeting to ask council to lease a lot owned by the Big Four railroad on North Broadway avenue near the depot as a playground. Council agreed to lease the lot for playground purposes if arrangements can be completed.

Also approved were resolutions approving street improvements on Morning Side drive and authorizing Mayor Morris to enter into a contract with Dr. John McHugh and Dr. L. E. Price as city physicians here. The two doctors recently submitted a joint bid of $125 a month for the post.

The first reading of an ordinance compelling merchants to place governors on trucks here was passed by the councilmen. The ordinance will come up at the next meeting in two weeks for another reading.

The project is financed by NYA giving grants for the labor costs, while the city, as sponsor, pays for the material and equipment used. The property owners will pay for the city's share of the expense.

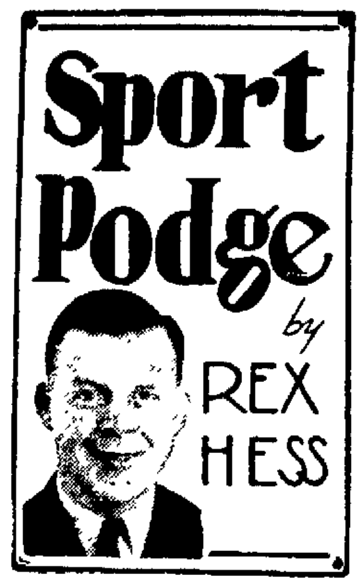
Ohio State League Clears Decks for Coming Season



A week from today is OPENING DAY, but pardon me if I seem a bit confused.

Baseball and football seasons open on the same day, and what do you make of that, my friends?

The Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox will be prying off the diamond lid up there at Cleveland stadium. And out at Mansfield's Stadium field Coach Paul Snyder's Tyger gridmen will be engaging Toledo Waite in a regulation game.

There's a nice big opening for everyone, and let's hope we have the right kind of a day for it.

With fans remembering the no-hit, no-run game Bob Feller hurled against those White Sox at Chicago on opening day last spring, and Feller again slated for the curtain-raising mound chore, there will be plenty of Mansfielders Cleveland-bound come next Tuesday.

And with Mansfield expecting a good grid season next fall, and the Tygers getting their first real test against a tough Toledo outfit, and the free gate demanded by the Ohio High School Athletic association for this "practice" game, those stands at Stadium field should be filled.

And where would you go, neighbor, if you had your choice? Woe is me! I'll never be an executive. These snap decisions come too tough.

A fine pair of openers, you say? Jacks or better? Here's a pair of aces, chum. Beat it if you can.

Mansfield and Cleveland fight trainers haven't come to blows yet, but they're not on the best of terms, not after what happened last week.

As Russ Gimbel of Friendly House tells the story, promoters of the Lorain Lions mitt show of Friday night for the benefit of the club's fund for crippled children, wanted to put some Mansfield boys on the card. Al Sauer was all signed up for the event.

But the Cleveland Amateur Boxing Trainers association threatened to boycott the show unless Cleveland boys were used. So the Mansfielders were crowded out.

"The Cleveland trainers want us to join their organization, at a $50 fee," says Gible. "Where would we get fifty dollars, and what good would it do us?

"But that is NOT the reason we are not letting Paul Carbetta fight on the Cleveland trainers' medical fund show next Monday. We have him booked here April 17 and we're not going to disappoint the Mansfield fans this time."

Who ever heard of a trainers' fight?

Bill Lee Has It All Figured Out

PLAQUEMINE, La. —(AP)— Big Bill Lee, patting his beloved bird dogs goodbye, prepared to leave for Chicago today and tell the Cubs' bosses personally that they couldn't possibly make a profit this season unless they hired him —which in turn couldn't be done for the measly $12,500 they're offering.

* * *

"The way I look at it," said Lee, owlishly solemn behind his spectacles, "they need me as much as I need them. With the pitching staff as it shapes up now they won't have a chance of finishing in the first division without my help."

"They have to have a pennant contender or there won't be any crowds. Without the crowds they lose money and without baseball I lose money so I don't see why we can't get together."

Boston Hose Even Series

Defeat Cincy Reds By 5-2 Count Monday.

OWENSBORO, Ky. —(UP)— The spring training series between the Cincinnati Reds and the Boston Red Sox stood at six-all today as the two teams headed for Louisville for the 13th encounter.

* * *

Jittery base running by the world's champions helped the Bostoners to run up a 5-2 victory here yesterday and tie the series.

The Reds accounted for eight hits against seven by the Sox, but lost their chances on the baselines. The Sox also hammered out three home runs, two with men on base to take an easy victory.

Harry craft and Lonny Frey were the principal offenders on base running for the Reds. Craft failed to run out a pop fly for one miss and in the fourth Frey caught off third base trying to scramble back after a long fly by Ripple.

Bob Logan and Joe Beggs divided the pitching task for the Reds, the former pitching the first four innings, during which he yielded five hits, two of them home runs.

Sudden spurts of heavy hitting helped the Red Sox win. Bobby Doerr homered in the second for the first counter. In the third Don DiMaggio hit one for the circuit with one on and in the sixth Jimmy Foxx duplicated his teammate's feat.

* * *

The Reds scored in the fourth with two singles and a walk and counted once more in the ninth.

GOLF LEAGUE MEETS

Brandt said there are already more sponsors available than there are teams, and that those attending the session will be given first consideration.

SUB FOR PERRONI LOSES TO SAVOLD

ATLANTA —(AP)— Enlistment of Patsy Perroni, Canton, O., heavyweight boxer, in the nation's military service, was announced last night from the ring where he had been billed to meet Lee Savold of Des Moines, Ia., in a 10-round bout.

Substituting for Perroni, Mike Alfano of New York was unable to answer the bell in the third round, his left eye having been closed by Savold's punches in the second.

Grocery Boy Battles Joe

Musto Becomes No. 16 In Bum-of-Month Club.

ST. LOUIS —(AP)— Everything else having failed, a former grocery boy has been drafted to oppose heavyweight Champion Joe Louis tonight.

Tony Musto, a Chicago Italian as short and studdy as a crew haircut, is championship target No. 16 in the parade of fistic talent that has included fat men, skinny men clowns and even an orthodox pugilist or two in Louis' Stop-a-month tour of the country.

Musto, who graduated from delivery boy to steel puddler before turning fighter, will be one of the few persons among the 20,000 expected to jam the arena who thinks he will subdue Louis.

* * *

Few bets are available that the scrap will go beyond five rounds —and that curfew is forecast with Musto flat on his back.

Despite the anticipated outcome, Mike Jacobs, New York promoter and shepherd of the Louis interests, thumbed through $38,000 in advance sales and predicted the total receipts would be $55,000.

The only thing that distinguishes this stop on the Louis tour is that the champion encounters a foe who fights naturally from a crouch.

Except for Tony Galento and Al McCoy, who adopted the undersiung style for a night, Louis has tangled only with upright young men.

* * *

Another disadvantage which isn't expected to disturb Louis in the least is the challenger's short stature. Standing upright, Musto measures 5 feet, 7 inches which is six inches less than Louis. Folded into his fighting pose, the Italian scratches his nose on the champion's belt.

Feller Hurls In Top Form

Indians Pound Giant Tossers to Win Sixth.

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn.—(UP)— Everything looked rosy to the Cleveland Indians today after they ran up an impressive 7-1 victory over the New York Giants behind the mid-season pitching prowess of their mound ace, Bob Feller.

* * *

The victory gave the Indians a 6-1 series lead over the Giants whom they meet again today in Pulaski, Va., with Al Milnar scheduled to handle the pitching duties.

Feller was in top form yesterday in contrast to his poor showing several days ago. He held the National Leaguers to five hits in seven innings and fanned seven men.

The Indians hit Bump Hadley and Bill Lohrman for 11 safeties. The Giants collected only seven off Feller and Joe Heving who relieved the Indians No. 1 moundsman in the seventh and gave two hits.

The Indians scored twice in the first and the Giants likewise put one across. Both teams then went scoreless until the seventh when the Tribe's heavy guns opened up and they knocked out four doubles and a single for four runs. The Tribe added one for good measure in the ninth when Ken Keltner scored on a single by Charlie Workman.

Roy Weatherly led the Tribe's batsmen with three hits out of three times up. Hal Trosky accounted for two doubles, and Feller and Keltner each had a two-bagger.

TOLEDO BOWLERS TAKE THIRD PLACE

ST. PAUL — (UP) — In keeping with the nation's new emphasis on its defense forces, a 58-year-old naval lieutenant was up among the leaders today at the American Bowling Congress.

The salt water bowler was Lieut. Charles Wagner of the Philadelphia navy yard, who went into fifth place in the singles standings with a score of 711.

A pair of Toledo, O., keglers also showed themselves into the spotlight, rolling into third place in the doubles bracket with 1,304. The two were David St. Aubin and Robert Lamb.

START PRACTICE

Mrs. Nova and the Nova's daughter, Herta, are shown with Lou, right. The child is giving Max a piece of cheese. Wonder if that has any particular significance?

GETS MOUND CHANCE

LUBBOCK, Tex. — (AP) — Phil Cavarretta, Chicago Cubs' outfielder-first baseman, may get a chance on the mound as the result of his showing in exhibitions.

SPORTS GOSSIP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK — (The Special News Service)—Bill Jurges gives a fine, inspiring letter from Lou Gehrig (whom he hardly knows) the credit for sending him to the Mayo clinic and putting him back on the road to health. . . . Ben Hogan, the demon Texan, has finished in the money in 45 consecutive golf tournaments. . . . U. of Arkansas is afeared the army is going to grab its crack cage coach, Glen Rose. . . . We have been invited to the Grand Lake Fishathon at Miami, Okla., in May—if we'll bring our own boat. Thanks, pals. . . . Negotiations are under way to have Tirza (who danced in a shower of wine at the world's fair) teach New York U. gridders elementary ballet dancing to improve their kicking.

COUPLE OF COUPLETS

Doc Prothro must be slipping fast.
He picks the Giants to finish last.

TALE OF TWO BEARS

Max, the elder, came a cropper,
And Buddy soon becomes a popper.

MAKING THE ROUNDS

Charley Miller, famous guide and conditioner, says he can make a heavyweight out of Billy Conn. . . . "If he'll come into the Maine woods with me a few weeks before he starts training for Louis, I'll bet I'll put ten pounds on him," says Charley, "and not an ounce of it will be fat." . . . Add winning streaks: The Stanley (N. C.) high basketeers just have completed their third straight undefeated season, for a total of 83 consecutive wins. . . . And the Little Rock highs have won 80 track meets in a row and 15 consecutive state titles. . . . Pants Rowland of the Cubs' brain trust is looking over Brooklyn's Montreal farm hands, indicating a Dodger deal for Billy Herman is not a dead pigeon—yet.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Dan Parker, N. Y. Daily Mirror: "Jackie Donovan, Buffalo fighter, who is a painter on the side, is doing Mike Jacobs' portrait. . . . I hope he's putting plenty of long green in it, because that's Mike favorite color."

PEOPLE AND THINGS

Billy Terry says he would win the pennant with the Giants, if he had Charlie Keller and Flash Gordon from the Yanks. . . . Visitor: Lt.-Col. Walter H. Wells of the war department staff, known to hundreds of eastern sports writers and sportsmen as "Cappie" when he was public relations director at West Point some years back. . . . If Tommy Gomez, Tampa heavy, improves as much in his second year of boxing as he did in his first, he may be just what the Doc ordered for Joe Louis.

RIGHT ON THE JOB

Anyway, the Storck seen his duty and done it. . . . Before departing, he left the National Professional Football league a fine 175-pound commissioner.

HOW TO WIN

Merely tie a can to your coach. . . . Concordia seminary of St. Louis, which didn't have one last season, won ten straight basketball games.

COMISKEY RETURNS TO FIGHT PICTURE

ATLANTA, Ga. — (UP) — Pat Comiskey, 210-pound Paterson, N. J., slugger fighting to come back to a contender's spot in the national heavyweight picture, was one step nearer his goal today.

Comiskey stabbed a short but potent left to the chin and knocked out Jack Merrick of Ponca City, Okla., after 55 seconds of the third round in a 10-round feature bout, fought before 3,000 fans here last night.

Final Fee Posted By Loop Clubs

U. S. Fighting Men To Be Guests of Circuit.

THE Ohio State baseball league cleared its decks for action last night at a meeting at Mansfield Leland hotel, and is all set to go for the 1941 season with opening games booked May 14.

* * *

League teams each posted the second $300 of their $600 forfeit fee and cleared up other financial obligations preparatory to the season's opening.

* * *

All clubs were represented at the meeting with the exception of Lima, and by previous agreement President Joe Donnelly was to stop in Lima today to pick up the Panda check.

The loop magnates made a patriotic gesture when they approved a motion to permit all of Uncle Sam's fighting men, in uniform, to attend league games free of charge.

Although there are no army camps in league territory, the free gate will bring many soldiers, sailors and marines to the games when they are home on furlough.

Plans for an all-star game were completed at the session. Under the new plan the winning team in the first half will meet a team of stars selected from the other five clubs in the home park of the first-half champions.

* * *

The game will be played Monday, July 7, and since the first half closes July 3 members of the first place club will be in line for all-star honors, but if any are picked on the star team their places will be taken by those next in line for the big game.

* * *

Donnelly announced he had applications from 38 umpires, all of whom have been given a chance to try out by working practice sessions of the league clubs during the training season.

* * *

Of this group, 21 accepted the invitation, Donnelly said. They will report to Donnelly for instructions on May 3, and report to the various clubs May 4.

Galento Gets Last Chance

Meets Buddy Baer In Effort To Even Up.

WASHINGTON —(UP)— Tony Galento gets a last chance tonight to prove to his public that it's as simple to draw a bead on a Baer as a beer.

Last summer Tony tried it, but both the beer and (Max) Baer ganged up on him. Result—Galento couldn't answer the bell for the eighth round. Tony contended then that too much grog had dulled his reflexes. Ringsiders insisted it was a case of too much Max.

Tonight things will be different though, according to Galento.

Two-ton's foe in a 10-rounder at the Uline arena will be Max's baby brother, Buddy—a mere slip of a kid who stands six feet six and scales 245 pounds.

Galento vows he has stayed aboard the wagon and trained for this particular test, which brings him to the cross roads of his career and holds for the winner the promise of a July crack at Joe Louis' crown.

Tony has boiled himself down to 240 pounds. There was evidence this was accomplished under duress. Galento did all his training at Orange, N. J., where, it so happens, he operates a tavern.

PRICES ON NEW DOWN SLANT IN MARKET TODAY

Lack of Definite News From Balkans Blamed as Steels, Motors Take Drop.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Prices again slanted downward in today's stock market with steels and rails leading the retreat. Losses ranged from fractions to more than a point.

Tagged with minus signs were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, N. Y. Central, Standard Oil of N. J., U. S. Rubber, Douglas Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Air Reduction and Du Pont.

Bonds and commodities were irregular.

Lack of definite information as to just what was happening in the Balkan war, brokers thought, inspired many customers to stand aside.

A market prop was seen in the federal reserve summary disclosing another substantial upturn in commercial, industrial and agricultural bank loans throughout the nation.

A constructive interpretation also was placed on the compliation of comptroller of the currently delano indicating most banks have been showing satisfactory profits notwithstanding record low interest rates.

RESUMES WORK AT ALLIS PLANT

U. S. Steel Continues Operation But Miners Remain Idle Over Contract Snag.

workers. U. S. Steel employs 261,000, and has many important defense contracts.

Further conferences in the soft coal dispute were to be held at New York today. Southern mine operators had balked at a proposal to eliminate a wage differential under which southern miners make 40 cents a day less than similar workers in the north. The CIO United Mine Workers demanded a flat $7 a day, compared with $6 a day in the north and $5.60 in the south, under the old contract.

An AFL machinists strike in the San Francisco area, called yesterday to enforce wage demands, closed about 50 plants and projects involving an estimated $7,000,000 in national defense contracts.

At Detroit, 85,000 employes of the Ford Motor company remained idle as a result of a CIO called strike at the River Rogue plant, but James F. Dewey, federal conciliator, expressed confidence he could arrange a face-to-face meeting of union and management soon to discuss settlement of the difficulties.

The union demands contractural collective bargaining, 10 cents an hour wage increases, reinstatement of employes it claims were dismissed for union activity and seniority guarantees.

Another important development was action of the national labor relations board in ordering collective bargaining elections at Ford plants at River Rouge and Detroit. The elections must be held within the next 45 days. Employes will have their choice of a CIO or AFL union as collective bargaining agent, or they may reject both.

Other strikes for higher wages were in progress at the Lukens Steel company, Coatsville, Pa., Phelps-Dodge Copper Corp., Elizabeth, N. J., and the Harris-Seybold-Potter company, Cleveland machinery factory.

A threatened strike of firemen, linesmen and oilers on Great Lakes and tugboats was settled last night. Details were not announced, but the union had asked wage increases for 600 tugmen.

At Chester, Pa., it was announced that 7,500 hourly workers of the Sun Shipbuilding and Drydock company would get a four per cent wage increase, retroactive to Jan. 18, but that union demands for a closed shop and other concessions had been denied under the arbitration decision. There had been no work stoppage during negotiations.

The International Harvester company announced it had instituted a six-day, 48-hour work week at six plants in Illinois and Indiana, with pay at time-and-a-half for the extra eight-hour shift, to increase defense production. Four of the plants were affected by recently settled strikes.

that a committee from the S. R. C. called upon to "more strictly ading, to present their protest.

Beer said that at a meeting of teachers today teachers will be called upto to "more strictly adhere to the class schedule."

Explaining that he could understand why in some instances the study-recitation schedule was not maintained, Beer said that frequently, when taking up a new subject, teachers sometimes would use the entire period to present the subject.

He added, however, that teachers frequently have to be reminded of the half study and half recitation period schedule "because they sometimes forget and do not give the required time for study."

The committee also expressed a desire on the part of the S. R. C. body to assist school officials in preventing damage to the lawns and other school property, Beer said.

The S. R. C. is composed of about 40 pupils who are elected by pupils in their home rooms.

Robert Lantz is president of the S. R. C.; Joe Horvath is vice president; Dorothy Bergman, secretary; and Gene Emmer, treasurer.

NAZIS REPULSED BY GREEKS IN BIG HILL BATTLE

Parachutists Seized, Germans Reach Aegean; Yugoslavs Retreat In South.

rifice, defending the fatherland inch by inch."

Military observers said a general Yugoslav withdrawal from the sector would permit the Germans to plunge down the broad Vardar river valley, key route to Greece.

The official Turkish radio declared the Germans had lost heavily in their initial onslaughts against the Balkan allies. The radio said that if the Yugoslavs and Greeks established contact in Albania, Italy would be unable "to save 10 per cent of her troops there."

An official Yugoslav report said Yugoslav troops had seized Scutari, Albania, and were driving southward in an apparent "squeeze" operation to drive out the Fascists.

The Italian town of Zara, on the Dalmatian coast, was also said to have fallen to the Yugoslavs.

The Greek high command acknowledged the withdrawal of "weak screening forces" from western Thrace, along Greece's frontier with Turkey, permitting Nazi panzer columns to slash through to the Aegean.

The high command said the withdrawal was carried out "to avoid useless sacrifices" because eastern Thrace was untenable.

War-cut communications from Yugoslavia blacked out any Yugoslav account of the trend of the battle, but the Germans declared earlier they had crossed the border in drives from the north, northeast and east—driving in wedges in some places 30 miles deep.

In southern Serbia, the Vardar valley is within 30 miles of the Bulgarian frontier.

German parachute troopers landing behind Greek lines were reported captured.

Spyros P. Skouras, president of the Greek War Relief Association of America, said last night in Los Angeles that all northern Greece had been cleared for action, with 1,000,000 men, women and children—one-eighth of Greece's population—moved south from potential battle areas.

There was no indication whether any major test of battle power had been reached in Yugoslavia, where Yugoslav strategy had been to fall back from the north and northeast to better defended positions, possibly along the Sava and Vardar valleys, where troops would fight with their backs to the mountains.

The Luftwaffe continued to beat a path for the Nazi advance. Belgrade had its fifth raid of the war last night. Sarajevo was reported bombed to ruins.

Italian sources said Greek efforts to break through Fascist lines in Albania to join Yugoslav forces north of Lake Ochrida were broken up and a Greek division virtually wiped out.

The Greeks, saying nothing of an attempt to reach the Yugoslavs, reported "vigorous action" in Albania and said Italian positions were seized and 500 Italians captured.

Authorized German sources declined to give out specific information on the progress of the Balkan campaign, but told correspondents:

"Expect little now—tomorrow you may learn considerably more."

As in the Polish and the Scandinavian phases of the war, Germany issued a white book purportedly disclosing events which led to the new outbreak.

The book declared Yugoslav and Greek policies in 1939 were "contrary to neutrality" and mentioned so-called secret documents which it said gave evidence of an Allied plan to extend the war to the Balkans with Greek and Yugoslav collaboration.

In the war of the west, the Luftwaffe carried out widespread raids overnight reaching as far as north Ireland.

Liverpool bore the brunt of the attacks, but reports from England indicated casualties were not heavy.

The att[illegible] Ireland, the first [illegible] raid to reach across the Irish sea caused damage to [illegible] commercial and other property and some casualties.

London [illegible] 7 nights [illegible] A [illegible] outside [illegible] for the aged [illegible] was reported [illegible] others injured.

British bombers [illegible] credited with raids on the German naval base at Kiel and [illegible] ports of Bremerhaven and Emden.

Dispatches from Berlin said some civilians [illegible] in the bombing of [illegible] German coastal town.

The London air ministry said RAF bombers had delivered a thundering five-hour attack on Kiel.

"Great fires raged in the town, while hundreds of tons of very powerful bombs caused destruction in the submarine building yards and docks," the ministry said.

British officials acknowledged shipping losses for two of the past three weeks had risen to 150,000 tons each, the heaviest toll of 1941 in the grim-waged battle of the Atlantic.

During March, the admiralty said, the average weekly loss was 98,000 tons.

Statement Hints Abandonment of Port

LONDON —(UP)— A statement by British military authorities today that Salonika, the great Greek port on the Aegean, may have lost some of its importance, was construed in unofficial quarters to a possible preparation for an announcement of allied withdrawal from the Salonika area.

Military informants said Salonika "may have lost some of its importance since the last war because it is within close range of air fields in Bulgaria."

They said they had no confirmation of Turkish reports that the Germans had reached the Aegean sea at some points in eastern Greece.

Withdrawal of British advanced troops in Libya was proceeding, informants said.

They added that action there was not necessarily finished. This was believed to mean that further retirement was possible before the drive of German and Italian forces.

Rome Reports Nazis Occupy Libyan Port

ROME — (AP) — An official announcement said today that Italian and German troops had occupied the Libyan port of Derna.

Derna is approximately 175 miles east of Bengasi, from which the British withdrew last week. A deep water port, had been held by British forces since Jan. 30.

The town is of strategic importance because it possesses large fresh water supplies vital to desert fighting.

The Italian high command also announced that Fascist troops and the German mechanized units had occupied the Libyan towns of Barce and Tocra. Tocra lies about 50 miles northeast of Bengasi on the coast. Barce is about 10 miles inland.

The house approved the amendment after Jones declared that it was aimed specifically at persons named by the Dies committee as members of subversive organizations.

At Last It Has Happened--- Dottie Lamour Loses Sarong

HOLLYWOOD—(INS)—After all these years, Dorothy Lamour's sarong betrayed her yesterday. It came off while the movie star was in a pool, leaving her in—well—virtually her birthday suit.

Some say that was all she had on.

There was a slight difference of opinion because Miss Lamour, as soon as the treacherous sarong had parted company from her shapely figure, began to splash furiously in the water. The ripples and the splashes sort of obscured the vision.

The star created a diversion, too, by screaming.

Stalwart Jon Hall, her leading man in the picture, "Aloma of the South Seas," looked on helplessly. Director Al Santell peeled off his coat and made as if to dive into the water. Electricians on the catwalks shouted helpfully: "Don't worry, Dorothy, we'll be right down."

It was Wardrobe woman Florence Lyons, however, who became the heroine of the moment.

She grabbed up two bath towels and plunged into the water. She was fully clothed herself but that didn't stop her. She waded up to where Miss Lamour was still splashing mightily. She wrapped the towels around the star. The two emerged dripping from the pool and the ordeal.

Did the camera photograph it all? Well, that's a question, too. But if it did, the studio chivalrously will destroy the film.

U. S. destroyers to the British under the lend-lease act, together with increased efforts to repair and service British warships and merchant tonnage in American shipyards.

The type and nature of the equipment was kept secret, but these sources said it was being delivered to coastal shipping points and that the loading of ships in some cases had begun.

Yugoslavian Minister Constantin Fotich has arranged for requisitioning the seven Yugoslav ships in American waters to carry war supplies. It was not known whether they would be used for the first shipments.

One well-informed sources said the equipment most likely included some 75-millimeter guns of the same type President Roosevelt released from army stocks last week for Greece.

Some of the Greek aid already on its way was expected to be diverted to Yugoslavia, since most officials here consider the two countries engaged in a joint defense on a common front.

Handicapping American officials and Greek, Yugoslav and British officials here was the lack of detailed information from diplomatic observers in the new war theater. Late yesterday no report had been received by the state department from any diplomats in Yugoslavia or eastern Greece.

Some officials believed that it would require at least a week, and possible longer, to determine exact needs of the Allied armies on the new front and their staying powers against the combined Italian and Greek armies.

and $4,000 for the purchase of four new cruisers.

Mayor Locke, who has called a special council meeting for tonight, to ask additional policemen before signing the shorter work week ordinance, said yesterday in his letters to councilmen that the ordinance was "very ill-timed legislation."

The mayor said that parking meters would have taken in enough money by next month to pay for their purchase and suggested that council use the funds to provide four more patrolmen.

Miller said that he was aware of the receipts from parking meters but that it was council's duty to pay for the meters before using "uncollected" funds for other purposes.

Mayor Locke indicated that council will be submitted an ordinance calling for the additional policemen tonight. He also said that provision would be asked for the extension of the salary of a collector for meter receipts.

Council will also be asked to approve final arrangements for the grade-crossing elimination on the B. & O tracks out West Fourth street. The state has requested that the city make provision for its share of $31,000 in the project.

Russell D. Porch, chairman of the utilities committee, announced that the committee was still gathering information concerning the rate ordinances of neighboring cities but that no action would be taken tonight.

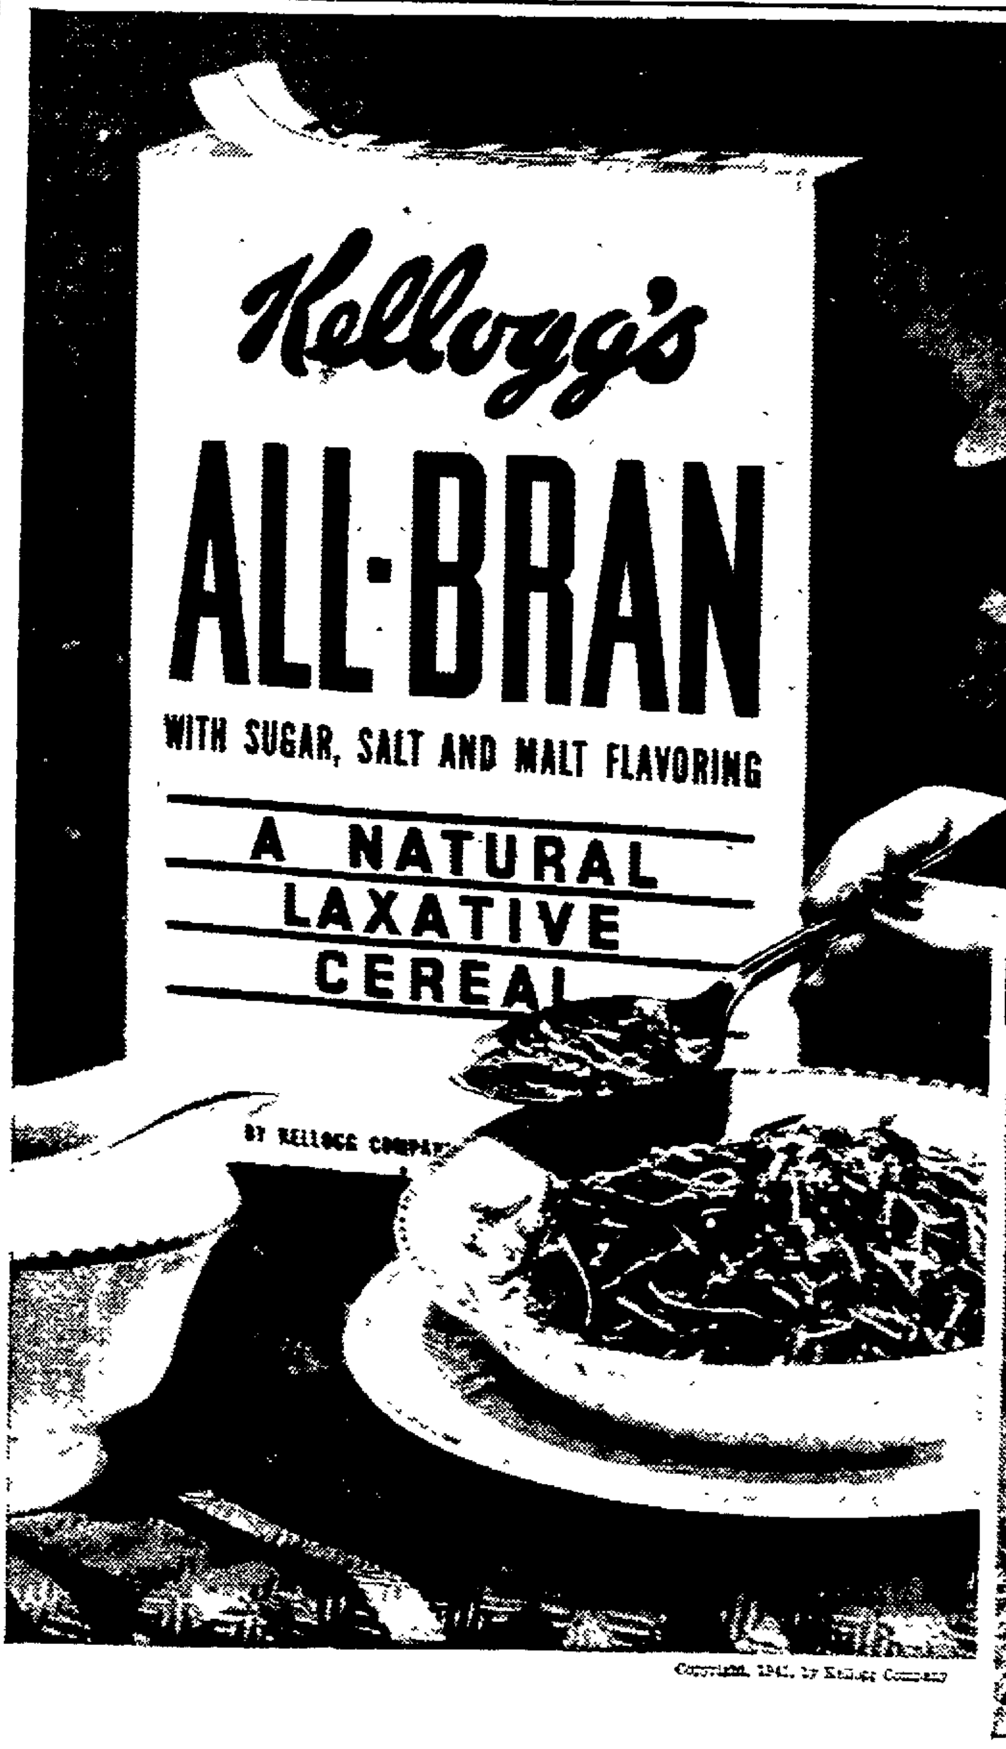
NOW DOUBLY DELICIOUS! GOLDEN SOFT KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN! IT'S MADE FROM ONE OF THE WORLD'S FINEST WHEATS!

IT'S LIGHTER! CRISPER! TRY IT FOR TOMORROW'S BREAKFAST



Kellogg's
ALL-BRAN
WITH SUGAR, SALT AND MALT FLAVORING
A NATURAL LAXATIVE CEREAL
BY KELLOGG COMPANY

Copyright, 1941, by Kellogg Company

FOR YEARS you've known KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN as a famous laxative cereal. Now try it for its taste as well!

IT'S DOUBLY DELICIOUS because it's made of finer quality bran from one of the world's softest wheats. The improved ALL-BRAN comes out of our toasters bright as shreds of gold. It's lighter! Crisper! More delicate! Ask your grocer for it today.

Making a good thing better is an old American custom. So, for years Kellogg's grain buyers, who buy more grain for ready-to-eat breakfast cereals than any other men in the world, have been seeking an ideal wheat for KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. A few months ago, they found it growing in the sunny valleys of the Pacific Coast states and in a few midwestern and eastern areas.

It's one of the world's softest wheats—used for the very finest pastry flour.

The bran from this wheat, put through ALL-BRAN'S cooking and toasting ovens, came out bright as shreds of gold, and lighter, softer, crisper, more delicately flavored than any we had used in 20 years of making ALL-BRAN.

And now the improved and more delicious ALL-BRAN is at your grocer's.

If you or other members of your family are troubled with constipation due to lack of the right kind of "bulk" in the diet, try the improved ALL-BRAN! Or use it merely as a precaution against this common ailment. Be sure to eat it regularly, and drink plenty of water.

ALL-BRAN is made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. It is sold by grocers and served by restaurants everywhere.

FROM ONE OF THE WORLD'S FINEST WHEATS

OUT IN THE WEST, grain men are growing one of the world's softest wheats. It is used especially for the finest pastry flour. And it's from this marvelous wheat that Kellogg's gets its better bran for your favorite breakfast food.

SET UP WHEAT QUOTAS SOON FOR FARMERS

Crop Allotments For 1,500 AAA Signers In County To Be Fixed Shortly.

Wheat allotments will be set up within a few days for all Richland county farms on which wheat has been grown in 1939, 1940, or 1941, according to Guy L. Taylor, county AAA chairman.

The allotments will determine how much wheat county farmers can grow next year to qualify for AAA crop payments.

Taylor said there will be no allotments established for farms which have grown no wheat in the past three years unless the farm owners request allotments in writing before June 1.

More than 1,500 farmers have signed up for participation in the federal farm program this year and several hundred more are expected to sign up before the deadline May 1, the chairman said.

Approximately 1,700 farmers received AAA checks during the past year for a new high in the county. The participation this year is expected to set a new record.

Taylor said a survey of the wheat outlook is being made now to determine whether it will be necessary to hold an election on proposed wheat marketing quotas this year. Indications point to a referendum late in May, he said.

Information on the crop plan for the year is available to farmers at county AAA headquarters, 78½ North Diamond street, Taylor added.

Sediment In City Water Won't Be There For Long

Sediment in Mansfield's water supply due to the addition of the new $70,000 high pressure line completed last week will not remain for long, O. C. Kalbfleisch, water superintendent, announced today.

Kalbfleisch said that the sediment usually appears when a new line is cut into the main supply. He stated however that it contained no harmful material and would disappear within a few days.

Kalbfleisch said that the matter was caused by chemical substance stirred up when the new lines were sterilized and tested. The pressure on downtown lines was increased about 15 pounds, he said and this also exerted some pressure on chemical deposits in the older pipes.

Work will be started soon on the $20,000 low pressure line to be constructed from Park avenue west to Wayne avenue. Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton said that work on the project would begin as soon as city workmen complete their task of repaving the sections torn up for the $70,000 waterline.

Attys. J. V. Will and C. J. Anderson were the defense counsel. Mrs. Cook's case was handled by Attys. Carpenter and Carpenter of Tiffin.

Holy Week In War-Torn World

OBSERVANCE of Holy Week comes as a strangely anomalous interlude for quiet thinking at a time when peoples of the world are greatly disturbed by war and threats of war.

The United States has thus far been peculiarly blessed by freedom from the ravages and suffering of such warfare as is now prevalent in Europe, but it has not escaped the internal strife which verges close on actual hostilities.

The inspiration for Holy Week, and its religious significance, provides the much-sought formula for preservation of peace in our own land and eventual restoration of peace throughout the world. But the simple formula of the Golden Rule seems too dificult of application to meet the needs of the human agencies to which it is entrusted. It reads: "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them . . .", or as more commonly said, "Do to others as you would have them to do to you."

That's all—but when the human family finally advances to a stage of civilization which makes the Golden Rule a practice instead of a preachment today's troublesome problems will have vanished; people will live in friendly accord, each with sufficient for his needs, and permanent peace on earth will be assured.

It is the widespread observance of Holy Week, and like manifestations of the impress of religion on thought and conduct, that inspires hope and encourages belief that human beings, under divine guidance, will eventually grope their way to a much higher plane of civilization than has yet been reached.

Great Iron Storehouse Opens

THEY'RE breaking the ice in the Great Lakes to get the ore ships through from the Lower Lakes to Lake Superior. This bit of industrial information is big news today in America and Europe.

For it is iron that is indispensable to winning a war. And it is a remarkable dispensation of providence that has placed the greatest ore deposits on earth safe inland, 1,500 miles from the Atlantic ocean. Also that the deposits are in the form of soft, red dirt, half earth and half iron, lying in natural basins from which they can be scooped out by big steam shovels without mining.

One such basin alone, near Hibbing, Minn., might be said to have won the last war, and could win this one, too, with plenty of ore left.

It's a great sight when the season opens and big ore vessels, that can carry 10,000 tons or more to a ship, shuttle up and down the lakes so close together that in the channels they almost touch each other. Our ships this season will handle about 75,000 tons of ore, and Canada's about 25,000, together more than all the iron production of the rest of the world. And this year's iron may turn the war tide.

State Park Nature Study

TWO DAYS of concentrated nature study are planned by the Illinois division of parks and memorials in co-operation with the Illinois natural history survey. The scene will be Starved Rock state park; the dates April 26 and 27.

The program includes many scheduled tours starting from the park naturalist's headquarters. Recognized authorities in botany, astronomy, ornithology and forestry will lead groups at different hours of the day. Bird walks at 6:30 in the morning, an astronomical session at night, other nature study tours and pleasure hikes in between, a banquet and a panel discussion are on the crowded program. There seems to be something for every nature lover's taste.

Such study makes the park's natural assets more interesting and enjoyable through the whole year to all who attend the spring sessions.

There might well be introductory tours in many state parks and forests. The picnic days that come later find thousands of persons getting recreation and fresh air. The study program, in advance of the busy summer season, affords cultural values which are quite different but equally worth while.

Heart Attacks While Driving

A HEART condition such as that which resulted in the death of a Toledo motorist while driving in Mansfield Sunday might well be taken into account in considering the advisability of operating a motor vehicle on streets or highways.

While all heart ailments are not of sufficient seriousness to preclude reasonable driving safety, the number of instances in which motorists suffer fatal heart attacks while at the wheel argues for at least occasional physical examinations designed to disclose defects, possibly in time to correct them—or at least to warn against taking unnecessary chances.

When the danger to others in the car is considered, as well as to occupants of other cars that might be encountered while a lifeless or unconscious person is at the wheel, the desirability of taking reasonable precautions seems evident.

And That, Children, Is a Cow

THE FIRST TIME the management of a big city zoo put farm animals on display there was some amusement. But the children showed just as much interest in cows, pigs, sheep and horses as in bears, lions and elephants. Since then the idea has been more or less accepted, as it is realized that many city children, for all their summer camping and picnicking, don't know much about farms.

The board of control of the Cleveland zoo is carrying the idea a step farther. It plans to set up at the local zoo this summer a life-size reproduction of an old-time farmyard, complete with domestic animals and antique machinery.

Are Schools Failure?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

ARE "American Schools a dismal failure?" Could it be true that "not one in 10,000 high school or college graduates would be graduated if he had to face a real test of competence in reading, writing, listening and calculating?"

Has the average high school graduate the competence of only a sixth-grader in reading?

Are the textbooks of our schools and colleges "predigested pap"—and an invention of pedagogues who know students cannot read a "hard" book?

Dr. Mortimer Adler answers all these questions with a definite and highly disagreeable downbeat. And Dr. Adler should know, for he's a University of Chicago faculty member and an author in his own right. Needless to say, Dr. Adler knew he was going to be unpopular before he made these declarations, but he believes that the welfare of Young America is more important than personal happiness. He also realizes that there's something mighty wrong with Modern Youth—and it isn't the hives. So he has dared to tell the truth as he sees it, and it doesn't make a pretty picture.

Are Dr. Adler's conclusions correct? Do they check with our observations as parents and employers? And how does Young America, under 30 years, vote on them? We wondered—and asked—and here today are some replies that may set you thinking.

Dear Elsie Robinson—

Schools have never been the educational force they claim to be. The textbook formula is ridiculously outmoded. The typical instructor has lost his bond with youth. He is largely cynical (or foolishly sentimental), disgruntled, poorly-paid and of a narrow, pedagogical clique. The average board is afraid of reform and of young teachers with vigorous new viewpoints. The student is fed colorless, rehashed facts. He does not learn how to adapt himself to society, how to secure a position, how to converse coherently or to read and interpret discerningly. Upon graduation he is thrust upon a hard, workaday world which he does not understand, and which does not understand him.

We need teachers who, even though they have life certificates, return to school themselves at intervals to brush up on changes . . . teachers with eager minds, a sense of humor and the ability to lead inspiringly. And, with those teachers, we need Boards of Education who are able to appreciate them and are willing to adopt their methods, and pay them accordingly.

BILLY L. BENNETT,
Muskegon, Ill.

There's more to that letter—all of it dynamite! And, in case, you need an extra jolt in the meantime, how's this?

Dear Miss Robinson—

I agree heartily with Dr. Adler, but not for the reasons given For obvious reasons, I cannot give my name, but I am a teacher in the Los Angeles secondary schools. And, with all respect for the individual mothers, I believe that they exert the most demoralizing influence on our American public schools.

I repeat, I sincerely respect the character and sincerity of these individual mothers, yet practice has forced me to realize they are the most reactive force in our educational program. Their own lives rarely include any 'educational effort.' They largely spend their leisure in playing bridge, window shopping or beauty treatments. As a consequence, they have a lively suspicion of any program which challenges such a schedule and are ready to oppose any progressive steps . . . particularly any steps which challenge their own sluggish, self-satisfied lives.

IF THE AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM IS "A DISMAL FAILURE" IT IS LARGELY BECAUSE OF AMERICAN MOTHERS.

There are shining exceptions to this rule, exceptions we all love and honor. But this is the tragic fact about the minority.

MRS. O. F. G.

Or is it? This column is open for public discussion on any current problem. What's YOUR opinion on this problem of American Education? Are our children being hampered by poor textbooks, inefficient teachers and militant or disinterested mamas? S'pose you tell us what's on your mind?

Timely Editorial

A Grave Situation.

The census bureau has added up the taxes collected by the federal, state and local governments of this country in the year ended June 30 last. The total is 14,300 million dollars. This is far more than the annual value of American farm products. It is about as much as the retail stores of Manhattan take in in ten years. If you sold all the real estate of the city of New York you would not have enough to pay that tax bill.

As the taxes imposed by the federal government have increased under the influence of paternalism, the state and local taxes, instead of decreasing to compensate for the load, have gone up also. The effort of our rulers is not to economize but to find new tax sources.

This is the grave situation: Before the huge expenses of national defense began, taxes were eating up 20 per cent of the national income. With 40 billion dollars of new costs for defense, how are the states and municipalities to go on with their lush spending? And where is there any substantial sign that they will try to stop it?—New York Sun.

Expect Hitler Will Avoid Break With U. S. Before Late Summer

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — Those who are steering U. S. foreign policy on its present difficult course privately offer four important reasons for not anticipating a break in diplomatic relations with Germany for some time.

One is the memory of the German people regarding American entrance into the last war. For years Germans have contended that they won the last war—until the United States entered; so the psychological effect of American entrance now is the last thing Hitler wants.

Two is the effect upon American morale. At present, U. S. draftees can't get enthusiastic about their service, while industry and labor could be much more patriotic about production. But once Hitler precipitated a declaration of war, sentiment here would be far different—and he knows it.

Three is the large amount of German property in the United States which would be seized in case of war.

Four is the fact that Germany is now able to receive a certain amount of goods from the U. S. A., sent via Russia and Japan, which she could not get in case of war.

Therefore, U. S. diplomatic experts are convinced that Hitler will do nothing rash toward the United States until after June or July, by which time he should pretty much know whether he is going to take England or not.

Nazi policy after that will be guided by intervening events.

Eddie and Wallie.

JOE MARTIN, house Republican leader and chairman of the Republican national committee is a talented raconteur. But he is keeping one choice story strictly to himself. When asked about it he laughs heartily, but will neither confirm nor deny it.

He was the dinner guest of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor during a vacation in Nassau last year, and it is unlikely that Martin will ever forget the meal. The fun began when the duke, attired in dashing Highland kilts, greeted the GOP chairman by singing the Republican campaign song: "I want to be a captain, too."

He did not, however, mention the name of Elliott Roosevelt.

Then the party moved into the dining room, led by a Scotch bagpiper in full regalia who marched three times around the table piping lustily until all were seated. Then, throughout the meal, he remained standing stiffly at attenion in a corner, within earshot.

During dinner the duke and duchess jested about their "exile" to the tiny colony. Martin, much intrigued by the bagpiper, kept eyeing him. Wally noticed this but said nothing until, after a smiling remark by the duke about being a "castaway," she suddenly turned to the piper.

"And you can report that back to Downing Street, too," she said.

The piper did not bat an eye, and the duke also seemed unperturbed.

"Don't mind him," he said to Martin, "he's only here to serenade me. It's an old Scottish custom."

Zinc Indictments.

LITTLE has appeared about it in the press, but a special federal grand jury in New York is investigating the zinc industry. Private justice department insiders expect a flock of indictments as sensational as those recently hung on the Aluminum Corporation of America.

Like aluminum, there is a serious shortage in zinc and it is crucial to the manufacture of brass, which, in turn, is essential in the production of cartridge cases. So critical is the zinc shortage that the OPM wants the army to use substitutes for galvanized sheeting and pipes in camp construction. Zinc is essential in galvanizing. When this mysterious shortage of zinc developed, the sleuths of the anti-trust department uncovered an extraordinary situation. For many years a world-wide zinc cartel had held down production in the United States, Britain and France in order to keep prices high. Meanwhile the Nazis steadily increased their output of this key raw material.

According to the justice department, the cartel, in which U. S. producers were leading members, operated through a system of commercial and patent licensing agreements. It allocated production quotas to the chief smelter countries—the United States, Britain, France, Germany, Belgium, and Poland.

German Production Soared.

AMERICAN output was limited to around 600,000 tons a year, although U. S. zinc consumption in 1938—the year before the war—amounted to 26.6 per cent of the total world production. Britain, in the same pre-war year, was held down to 61,938 tons—a considerable reduction of its 1937 output.

But while Germany was allotted 5 per cent of the world output, it paid no attention to this quota and boosted its production to 12 per cent, or 212,000 tons, in 1938. And it has increased production every year since.

Moreover, as a result of its Polish and Belgium conquests, Germany now has all their zinc smelters (they belonged to the cartel) and is operating them full blast for the Nazi war machine. An interesting angle is the fact that the Polish smelters are owned by a leading U. S. producer, a member of the cartel in both Poland and the U. S. A.

As the justice department summarizes the situation, while Germany was thumbing its nose at the cartel and stepping up zinc output to all-time highs for its war machine, American and British producers were limiting their production in order to make higher prices, plus bigger and better profits. The department has evidence that to accomplish higher prices; U. S. British interests actually dismantled facilities now so desperately needed for defense purposes.

The upshot is that by the end of this year, zinc production in the U. S. even with the new plants being erected, will total not more than 900,000 tons — far under civilian and military demands for ourselves and Britain.

Merry-Go-Round.

The ladies of Virginia have a unique way of raising money for Britain. The colonial gardens of Virginia, including those of Jefferson, the Lees, the Byrds—probably the oldest and most beautiful in America — will be open from April 28 to May 3. All the funds will be donated to Britain . . . Virgin Islanders are up in arms over the efforts of high-minded Gov. Harwood to uplift their morals through legislation. According to Alton Adams, editor of The St. Thomas Bulletin: "We must say to our would-be moral guides: Set us the examples . . . 'Thou hypocrites, cast out first the beams out of thine own eyes, and then thou shalt see clearly to pull out the motes that are in thy brothers' eyes.' "

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

Second of two articles on things to see in Washington and how to see them.

WASHINGTON — Without a worry about nickels and dimes, you probably can get as much for your money here as anywhere. The District of Columbia is no land of milk and honey, but congress has put a stoppage on some of the common rackets which drain the tourists of their shekels.

Hotel prices aren't cheap anywhere along the line, but if I had all the money in the world to spend, I wouldn't look for the MOST expensive hostelry. I'd probably check into the Willard. It's a comparatively modern hotel, but it has a bowl-and-pitcher charm that is somehow reminiscent of the days when Senator Douglas congratulated President-elect Lincoln with a hearty handshake in its vaulted lobby. Don't get the idea that it is a cheap spot to spend the night. It isn't. Remember that I'm prefacing this whole column on the fantasy that money isn't anything.

Early Start—At Noon.

THE next day, I would be up bright and early—about noon—and start on a list of tours. Beginning with the $1 tour around capital city, I'd branch out to the Arlington cemetery and the tomb of the Unknown Soldier—to old Alexandria, which was once one of the young nation's great seaports—to Mount Vernon, where a fellow named George Washington lived and tilled a great plantation, died and was buried—to the Great Falls of the Potomac river—to Annapolis, where the navy gives vitamins and A, B, C's to future admirals—to the homes of Robert E. Lee and Tom Jefferson—to a dozen other spots that earned their marks in the history books when the nation was aborning or gasping for life in the days of the Civil war.

An Aerial View.

HAVING no fear of being up in the air about anything that goes on here, I'd like that $3 dirigible ride over the city. Having spent all of the first trip trying to figure out the screwy street system which is built on the fallacy that a circle is the shortest distance between two points, I'd take it over again to see the sights.

I would spend at least five days doing all the things you can do for nothing (see the preceding column) and throw in the cultural visits to the Phillips, Freer, Corcoran and National art galleries. I would spend a quarter going up in the Capitol dome and at least 25 minutes before the shrouded statue of Huey Long in the Hall of Statuary. For several months now this figure, draped in sheets from head to base, has given the hall such a macabre air that even the Capitol guides turn aside and start talking about something else when they come to it.

If I felt like staying up late, I'd barge into Washington's night life. It doesn't compare with many other cities' but it isn't exactly a blank. It ranges from a burlesque show, where you will see a lot of congressmen, to dancing and a floor show on the Shoreham terrace, where you'll see a lot more congressmen.

One Must Eat.

SOMEWHERE along the line, I would eat a few good, if too-expensive meals. You probably can do better in New York, Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, New Orleans, San Francisco, and a dozen other cities—but it isn't every one of these that will give you river-front fish houses (such as Hall's) where President Grant and his cronies chomped over Chincoteague oysters and politics; or steak houses (such as the Occidental) where more politicians have hung their autographed photographs than ever the movie stars did in any chop joint in Hollywood.

In other words, for tourists who must shake the dime bank or those who take a layer from the bulging bank account, Washington is a mecca. If you have any doubts about it, write the Government Printing Office for "Washington—the city and Capital" ($3) or "The National Capital — A Manual on the Origin and Development of Washington" ($2) . . . the only two come-on guide books—in fact the only two—the government publishes.

A Farmer's Diary

Turkeys In Spring

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE SUN shines warm upon the slope today and our neighbor's turkey gobbler patrols the road in front of our house and chortles belligerently at any small boys who may cast speculative, wondering glances up the hill toward the woodland.

The gobbler is a huge, bronzed bird with vivid green, orange and purple sheen upon the feathers of his back and breast. His head is red with white and yellow wattles. A long, limp red proboscis hangs down over his beak and a brushlike necktie protrudes jauntily half way down his chest. His tail is a perfect fan, with two bands of white as he kraucks and struts and then burbles over into a defiant gobble that leaves him blue in the face as it echoes back from the hill.

His shy, timid mate, meanwhile, has entered the tangle of the upper slope and is threading her dainty way among the green briers. From time to time she pecks a blade of grass or stops to crane her long neck and look around. It would never do for anyone to guess what she is up to. Nobody must even suspect that she is there.

She ducks quickly into a hollow beneath some overhanging raspberry stalks where a thatch of dead dry grass makes a soft, resilient cushion — and becomes invisible. Her mauve feathers blend perfectly with the coloring of the canes, the dry grass and leaves. She settles down, contentedly, spreading the grass apart a little with her feet. After a few moments she slips out and away again, as quietly as a wraith. Beneath the raspberry bush, half hidden in the grass, three speckled eggs defy casual detection.

She hurries out into the clearing. The sun is shining. It is warm and good. She stops beside a fallen log and scratches for grubs, then wallows blithely in the fine, smooth, sun-warmed, silt.

Below the hill, her irridescent mate continues his bold, vociferous efforts to divert little boys' attention. After a while he struts back up the road toward his own barnyard. His manner seems to say, "Well, I've done my part. She's had time to lay an egg—I hope she did it."

One of the little boys comes to his mother and says, "Gee, Mom, aren't turkeys funny?"

Holy Week In War-Torn World

OBSERVANCE of Holy Week comes as a strangely anomalous interlude for quiet thinking at a time when peoples of the world are greatly disturbed by war and threats of war.

The United States has thus far been peculiarly blessed by freedom from the ravages and suffering of such warfare as is now prevalent in Europe, but it has not escaped the internal strife which verges close on actual hostilities.

The inspiration for Holy Week, and its religious significance, provides the much-sought formula for preservation of peace in our own land and eventual restoration of peace throughout the world. But the simple formula of the Golden Rule seems too dificult of application to meet the needs of the human agencies to which it is entrusted. It reads: "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them . . .", or as more commonly said, "Do to others as you would have them to do to you."

That's all—but when the human family finally advances to a stage of civilization which makes the Golden Rule a practice instead of a preachment today's troublesome problems will have vanished; people will live in friendly accord, each with sufficient for his needs, and permanent peace on earth will be assured.

It is the widespread observance of Holy Week, and like manifestations of the impress of religion on thought and conduct, that inspires hope and encourages belief that human beings, under divine guidance, will eventually grope their way to a much higher plane of civilization than has yet been reached.

Great Iron Storehouse Opens

THEY'RE breaking the ice in the Great Lakes to get the ore ships through from the Lower Lakes to Lake Superior. This bit of industrial information is big news today in America and Europe.

For it is iron that is indispensable to winning a war. And it is a remarkable dispensation of providence that has placed the greatest ore deposits on earth safe inland, 1,500 miles from the Atlantic ocean. Also that the deposits are in the form of soft, red dirt, half earth and half iron, lying in natural basins from which they can be scooped out by big steam shovels without mining.

One such basin alone, near Hibbing, Minn., might be said to have won the last war, and could win this one, too, with plenty of ore left.

It's a great sight when the season opens and big ore vessels, that can carry 10,000 tons or more to a ship, shuttle up and down the lakes so close together that in the channels they almost touch each other. Our ships this season will handle about 75,000 tons of ore, and Canada's about 25,000, together more than all the iron production of the rest of the world. And this year's iron may turn the war tide.

State Park Nature Study

TWO DAYS of concentrated nature study are planned by the Illinois division of parks and memorials in co-operation with the Illinois natural history survey. The scene will be Starved Rock state park; the dates April 26 and 27.

The program includes many scheduled tours starting from the park naturalist's headquarters. Recognized authorities in botany. astronomy. ornithology and forestry will lead groups at different hours of the day. Bird walks at 6:30 in the morning, an astronomical session at night. other nature study tours and pleasure hikes in between, a banquet and a panel discussion are on the crowded program. There seems to be something for every nature lover's taste.

Such study makes the park's natural assets more interesting and enjoyable through the whole year to all who attend the spring sessions.

There might well be introductory tours in many state parks and forests. The picnic days that come later find thousands of persons getting recreation and fresh air. The study program, in advance of the busy summer season. affords cultural values which are quite different but equally worth while.

Heart Attacks While Driving

A HEART condition such as that which resulted in the death of a Toledo motorist while driving in Mansfield Sunday might well be taken into account in considering the advisability of operating a motor vehicle on streets or highways.

While all heart ailments are not of sufficient seriousness to preclude reasonable driving safety, the number of instances in which motorists suffer fatal heart attacks while at the wheel argues for at least occasional physical examinations designed to disclose defects, possibly in time to correct them—or at least to warn against taking unnecessary chances.

When the danger to others in the car is considered, as well as to occupants of other cars that might be encountered while a lifeless or unconscious person is at the wheel, the desirability of taking reasonable precautions seems evident.

And That, Children, Is a Cow

THE FIRST TIME the management of a big city zoo put farm animals on display there was some amusement. But the children showed just as much interest in cows, pigs, sheep and horses as in bears, lions and elephants. Since then the idea has been more or less accepted, as it is realized that many city children, for all their summer camping and picnicking, don't know much about farms.

The board of control of the Cleveland zoo is carrying the idea a step farther. It plans to set up at the local zoo this summer a life-size reproduction of an old-time farmyard, complete with domestic animals and antique machinery.

Are Schools Failure?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

ARE "American Schools a dismal failure?" Could it be true that "not one in 10,000 high school or college graduates would be graduated if he had to face a real test of competence in reading, writing, listening and calculating?"

Has the average high school graduate the competence of only a sixth-grader in reading?

Are the textbooks of our schools and colleges "predigested pap"—and an invention of pedagogues who know students cannot read a "hard" book?

Dr. Mortimer Adler answers all these questions with a definite and highly disagreeable downbeat. And Dr. Adler should know, for he's a University of Chicago faculty member and an author in his own right. Needless to say, Dr. Adler knew he was going to be unpopular before he made these declarations, but he believes that the welfare of Young America is more important than personal happiness. He also realizes that there's something mighty wrong with Modern Youth—and it isn't the hives. So he has dared to tell the truth as he sees it, and it doesn't make a pretty picture.

Are Dr. Adler's conclusions correct? Do they check with our observations as parents and employers? And how does Young America, under 30 years, vote on them? We wondered—and asked—and here today are some replies that may set you thinking.

Dear Elsie Robinson—

Schools have never been the educational force they claim to be. The textbook formula is ridiculously outmoded. The typical instructor has lost his bond with youth. He is largely cynical (or foolishly sentimental), disgruntled, poorly-paid and of a narrow, pedagogical clique. The average board is afraid of reform and of young teachers with vigorous new viewpoints. The student is fed colorless, rehashed facts. He does not learn how to adapt himself to society, how to secure a position, how to converse coherently or to read and interpret discerningly. Upon graduation he is thrust upon a hard, workaday world which he does not understand, and which does not understand him.

We need teachers who, even though they have life certificates, return to school themselves at intervals to brush up on changes . . . teachers with eager minds, a sense of humor and the ability to lead inspiringly. And, with those teachers, we need Boards of Education who are able to appreciate them and are willing to adopt their methods, and pay them accordingly.

BILLY L. BENNETT,
Muskegon, Ill.

There's more to that letter—all of it dynamite! And, in case, you need an extra jolt in the meantime, how's this?

Dear Miss Robinson—

I agree heartily with Dr. Adler, but not for the reasons given For obvious reasons, I cannot give my name, but I am a teacher in the Los Angeles secondary schools. And, with all respect for the individual mothers, I believe that they exert the most demoralizing influence on our American public schools.

I repeat, I sincerely respect the character and sincerity of these individual mothers, yet practice has forced me to realize they are the most reactive force in our educational program. Their own lives rarely include any 'educational effort.' They largely spend their leisure in playing bridge, window shopping or beauty treatments. As a consequence, they have a lively suspicion of any program which challenges such a schedule and are ready to oppose any progressive steps . . . particularly any steps which challenge their own sluggish, self-satisfied lives.

IF THE AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM IS "A DISMAL FAILURE" IT IS LARGELY BECAUSE OF AMERICAN MOTHERS.

There are shining exceptions to this rule, exceptions we all love and honor. But this is the tragic fact about the minority.

MRS. O. F. G.

Or is it? This column is open for public discussion on any current problem. What's YOUR opinion on this problem of American Education? Are our children being hampered by poor textbooks, inefficient teachers and militant or disinterested mamas? S'pose you tell us what's on your mind?

Timely Editorial

A Grave Situation.

The census bureau has added up the taxes collected by the federal, state and local governments of this country in the year ended June 30 last. The total is 14,300 million dollars. This is far more than the annual value of American farm products. It is about as much as the retail stores of Manhattan take in in ten years. If you sold all the real estate of the city of New York you would not have enough to pay that tax bill.

As the taxes imposed by the federal government have increased under the influence of paternalism, the state and local taxes, instead of decreasing to compensate for the load, have gone up also. The effort of our rulers is not to economize but to find new tax sources.

This is the grave situation: Before the huge expenses of national defense began, taxes were eating up 20 per cent of the national income. With 40 billion dollars of new costs for defense, how are the states and municipalities to go on with their lush spending? And where is there any substantial sign that they will try to stop it?—New York Sun.

Expect Hitler Will Avoid Break With U.S. Before Late Summer

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — Those who are steering U. S. foreign policy on its present difficult course privately offer four important reasons for not anticipating a break in diplomatic relations with Germany for some time.

One is the memory of the German people regarding American entrance into the last war. For years Germans have contended that they won the last war—until the United States entered; so the psychological effect of American entrance now is the last thing Hitler wants.

Two is the effect upon American morale. At present, U. S. draftees can't get enthusiastic about their service, while industry and labor could be much more patriotic about production. But once Hitler precipitated a declaration of war, sentiment here would be far different—and he knows it.

Three is the large amount of German property in the United States which would be seized in case of war.

Four is the fact that Germany is now able to receive a certain amount of goods from the U. S. A., sent via Russia and Japan, which she could not get in case of war.

Therefore, U. S. diplomatic experts are convinced that Hitler will do nothing rash toward the United States until after June or July, by which time he should pretty much know whether he is going to take England or not.

Nazi policy after that will be guided by intervening events.

Eddie and Wallie.

JOE MARTIN, house Republican leader and chairman of the Republican national committee is a talented raconteur. But he is keeping one choice story strictly to himself. When asked about it he laughs heartily, but will neither confirm nor deny it.

He was the dinner guest of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor during a vacation in Nassau last year, and it is unlikely that Martin will ever forget the meal. The fun began when the duke, attired in dashing Highland kilts, greeted the GOP chairman by singing the Republican campaign song: "I want to be a captain, too."

He did not, however, mention the name of Elliott Roosevelt.

Then the party moved into the dining room, led by a Scotch bagpiper in full regalia who marched three times around the table piping lustily until all were seated. Then, throughout the meal, he remained standing stiffly at attenion in a corner, within earshot.

During dinner the duke and duchess jested about their "exile" to the tiny colony. Martin, much intrigued by the bagpiper, kept eyeing him. Wally noticed this but said nothing until, after a smiling remark by the duke about being a "castaway," she suddenly turned to the piper.

"And you can report that back to Downing Street, too," she said.

The piper did not bat an eye, and the duke also seemed unperturbed.

"Don't mind him," he said to Martin, "he's only here to serenade me. It's an old Scottish custom."

Zinc Indictments.

LITTLE has appeared about it in the press, but a special federal grand jury in New York is investigating the zinc industry. Private justice department insiders expect a flock of indictments as sensational as those recently hung on the Aluminum Corporation of America.

Like aluminum, there is a serious shortage in zinc and it is crucial to the manufacture of brass, which, in turn, is essential in the production of cartridge cases. So critical is the zinc shortage that the OPM wants the army to use substitutes for galvanized sheeting and pipes in camp construction. Zinc is essential in galvanizing. When this mysterious shortage of zinc developed, the sleuths of the anti-trust department uncovered an extraordinary situation. For many years a world-wide zinc cartel had held down production in the United States, Britain and France in order to keep prices high. Meanwhile the Nazis steadily increased their output of this key raw material.

According to the justice department, the cartel, in which U. S. producers were leading members, operated through a system of commercial and patent licensing agreements. It allocated production quotas to the chief smelter countries—the United States, Britain, France, Germany, Belgium, and Poland.

German Production Soared.

AMERICAN output was limited to around 600,000 tons a year, although U. S. zinc consumption in 1938—the year before the war—amounted to 26.6 per cent of the total world production. Britain, in the same pre-war year, was held down to 61,938 tons—a considerable reduction of its 1937 output.

But while Germany was allotted 5 per cent of the world output, it paid no attention to this quota and boosted its production to 12 per cent, or 212,000 tons, in 1938. And it has increased production every year since.

Moreover, as a result of its Polish and Belgium conquests, Germany now has all their zinc smelters (they belonged to the cartel) and is operating them full blast for the Nazi war machine. An interesting angle is the fact that the Polish smelters are owned by a leading U. S. producer, a member of the cartel in both Poland and the U. S. A.

As the justice department summarizes the situation, while Germany was thumbing its nose at the cartel and stepping up zinc output to all-time highs for its war machine, American and British producers were limiting their production in order to make higher prices, plus bigger and better profits. The department has evidence that to accomplish higher prices; U. S. British interests actually dismantled facilities now so desperately needed for defense purposes.

The upshot is that by the end of this year, zinc production in the U. S. even with the new plants being erected, will total not more than 900,000 tons — far under civilian and military demands for ourselves and Britain.

Merry-Go-Round.

The ladies of Virginia have a unique way of raising money for Britain. The colonial gardens of Virginia, including those of Jefferson, the Lees, the Byrds—probably the oldest and most beautiful in America — will be open from April 28 to May 3. All the funds will be donated to Britain . . . Virgin Islanders are up in arms over the efforts of high-minded Gov. Harwood to uplift their morals through legislation. According to Alton Adams, editor of The St. Thomas Bulletin: "We must say to our would-be moral guides: Set us the examples . . . 'Thou hypocrites, cast out first the beams out of thine own eyes, and then thou shalt see clearly to pull out the motes that are in thy brothers' eyes.'"

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

Second of two articles on things to see in Washington and how to see them.

WASHINGTON — Without a worry about nickels and dimes, you probably can get as much for your money here as anywhere. The District of Columbia is no land of milk and honey, but congress has put a stoppage on some of the common rackets which drain the tourists of their shekels.

Hotel prices aren't cheap anywhere along the line, but if I had all the money in the world to spend, I wouldn't look for the MOST expensive hostelry. I'd probably check into the Willard. It's a comparatively modern hotel, but it has a bowl-and-pitcher charm that is somehow reminiscent of the days when Senator Douglas congratulated President-elect Lincoln with a hearty handshake in its vaulted lobby. Don't get the idea that it is a cheap spot to spend the night. It isn't. Remember that I'm prefacing this whole column on the fantasy that money isn't anything.

Early Start—At Noon.

THE next day, I would be up bright and early—about noon—and start on a list of tours. Beginning with the $1 tour around capital city, I'd branch out to the Arlington cemetery and the tomb of the Unknown Soldier—to old Alexandria, which was once one of the young nation's great seaports—to Mount Vernon, where a fellow named George Washington lived and tilled a great plantation, died and was buried—to the Great Falls of the Potomac river—to Annapolis, where the navy gives vitamins and A, B, C's to future admirals—to the homes of Robert E. Lee and Tom Jefferson—to a dozen other spots that earned their marks in the history books when the nation was aborning or gasping for life in the days of the Civil war.

An Aerial View.

HAVING no fear of being up in the air about anything that goes on here, I'd like that $3 dirigible ride over the city. Having spent all of the first trip trying to figure out the screwy street system which is built on the fallacy that a circle is the shortest distance between two points, I'd take it over again to see the sights.

I would spend at least five days doing all the things you can do for nothing (see the preceding column) and throw in the cultural visits to the Phillips, Freer, Corcoran and National art galleries. I would spend a quarter going up in the Capitol dome and at least 25 minutes before the shrouded statue of Huey Long in the Hall of Statuary. For several months now this figure, draped in sheets from head to base, has given the hall such a macabre air that even the Capitol guides turn aside and start talking about something else when they come to it.

If I felt like staying up late, I'd barge into Washington's night life. It doesn't compare with many other cities' but it isn't exactly a blank. It ranges from a burlesque show, where you will see a lot of congressmen, to dancing and a floor show on the Shoreham terrace, where you'll see a lot more congressmen.

One Must Eat.

SOMEWHERE along the line, I would eat a few good, if too-expensive meals. You probably can do better in New York, Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, New Orleans, San Francisco, and a dozen other cities—but it isn't every one of these that will give you river-front fish houses (such as Hall's) where President Grant and his cronies chomped over Chincoteague oysters and politics; or steak houses (such as the Occidental) where more politicians have hung their autographed photographs than ever the movie stars did in any chop joint in Hollywood.

In other words, for tourists who must shake the dime bank or those who take a layer from the bulging bank account, Washington is a mecca. If you have any doubts about it, write the Government Printing Office for "Washington—the city and Capital" ($3) or "The National Capital — A Manual on the Origin and Development of Washington" ($2) . . . the only two come-on guide books—in fact the only two—the government publishes.

A Farmer's Diary

Turkeys In Spring

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE SUN shines warm upon the slope today and our neighbor's turkey gobbler patrols the road in front of our house and chortles belligerently at any small boys who may cast speculative, wondering glances up the hill toward the woodland.

The gobbler is a huge, bronzed bird with vivid green, orange and purple sheen upon the feathers of his back and breast. His head is red with white and yellow wattles. A long, limp red proboscis hangs down over his beak and a brushlike necktie protrudes jauntily half way down his chest. His tail is a perfect fan, with two bands of white as he kraucks and struts and then burbles over into a defiant gobble that leaves him blue in the face as it echoes back from the hill.

His shy, timid mate, meanwhile, has entered the tangle of the upper slope and is threading her dainty way among the green briers. From time to time she pecks a blade of grass or stops to crane her long neck and look around. It would never do for anyone to guess what she is up to. Nobody must even suspect that she is there.

She ducks quickly into a hollow beneath some overhanging raspberry stalks where a thatch of dead dry grass makes a soft, resilient cushion — and becomes invisible. Her mauve feathers blend perfectly with the coloring of the canes, the dry grass and leaves. She settles down, contentedly, spreading the grass apart a little with her feet. After a few moments she slips out and away again, as quietly as a wraith. Beneath the raspberry bush, half hidden in the grass, three speckled eggs defy casual detection.

She hurries out into the clearing. The sun is shining. It is warm and good. She stops beside a fallen log and scratches for grubs, then wallows blithely in the fine, smooth, sun-warmed, silt.

Below the hill, her irridescent mate continues his bold, vociferous efforts to divert little boys' attention. After a while he struts back up the road toward his own barnyard. His manner seems to say, "Well, I've done my part. She's had time to lay an egg—I hope she did it."

ANNUAL INSPECTION HELD BY O. E. S. GROUP

Ruth Chapter Has Colorful Event at Masonic Temple With Grand Matron of Columbus As Inspecting Officer.

RAINBOW COLORS blended into an impressive scene when 366 members and guests of the Ruth chapter, Order of Eastern Star, dressed in pastel evening clothes met in the chapter room at the Masonim Temple for annual inspection. Mrs. Ruth Keefe, worthy matron, presided, and the inspecting officer was Fairy B. Gingery, grand matron of Columbus.

Bowls of yellow spring flowers, palms and ferns formed an attractive background for the ceremony.

The formal event consisted of the rituals and musical numbers given by a quartet composed of Mary Anglin, Emma Dye, Margaret Browder and Mary Jane Bellore. Mrs. Anglin sang several solos.

Many noted guests were in attendance at the service, namely, Mildred Hartman, grand representative of Utah; Carl Ellenwood of Wooster, past grand patron; Marguret Engler, grand representative of Montana; Florence Haggett, grand representative of British Columbia; Florence Chapin, grand representative of Missouri; Richard Garvin, of Marion, grand chaplain; Stella Beal, of Bucyrus, grand marshal; Sophie Shaw, grand electa; Robert K. ANNUAL MUSICALE GIVEN BY CHORUS

Members of Upper Sandusky Women's Chorus Give Program at Mansfield-Leland Hotel Ballroom Monday Evening.

MISS BETTY AUSTIN of New York City, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Austin, 286 Rowland avenue, was an impromptu entertainer when she was called upon to sing at the musicale exchange program given for members of the Mansfield Music Study club last evening in the ballroom of the Mansfield-Leland hotel. Visiting in the city during spring vacation, Miss Austin, who is studying voice in New York added her lovely singing to the varied program given by the Upper Sandusky Women's Chorus.

More than 75 members of the local music club and invited guests attended the concert. Due to the illness of a soloist and member of the Jenny Lind trio there was a change of program. Miss Austin sang "The Jewel Song," from Faust, "Parla" by Arditi and "Long and Long Ago" by her teacher, Florence-Turner-Maley. She was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Margaret Hall, president of the club.

In addition to the numbers mentioned previously the chorus, composed of 22 voices, sang "River, River," a Chilean folk song, "Calm As the Night" by Bolin, "O Jesu, So Sweet" by Bach. The concert, an annual exchange program with the Upper Sandusky group, was well received. Under the able direction of C. W. Assenheimer the numbers showed fine tone quality and precision. Mrs. Paul Stephan, pianist, played "A La Bien Aimee" by Schutte.

At the close of the program an informal reception was held in the ballroom with refreshments served from an attractive service table.

The next meeting of the club will be April 21 with a program given by the junior music groups at the John Simpson Junior high school auditorium.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Of course I did, Ronald," I told him quickly. "Father is trying to trace Marion with all the power at his command, and he ought to know everything that comes up about her. But we mentioned no names over the telephone, using 'X, Y and Z,' instead."

He hardly waited for me to finish, so eager was he to hear what my father's reaction had been.

"But what did he say?" he reiterated.

"He agreed with me, Ronald," I said, "that there is some sort of code in that letter. How much it will tell us, or whether it will be valuable in finding Marion, we cannot tell, of course, until I give the letter over to Mary and find out what she says about it."

"Will Mary see you as soon as you get in?" he asked.

"Noel is to meet me at the station, at midnight," I answered, "and we are going directly to the hotel where Mary will see me at once."

No manner of use in troubling this sorely beset boy with my own vague misgivings concerning Mary's supper party and what delay it might mean in my consultation with her. But, I resolved grimly, at best it would be an extremely short delay. I would brook no retarding of our investigation into Marion's disappearance.

A Grateful Boy.

"It won't be possible"—he began wistfully—then stopped abruptly. "No, you'd be too tired—" he added. "You mustn't be wakened."

I did not need to be clairvoyant to read what was in his mind.

"I won't be too tired to talk to you over the telephone, if that is what you mean," I told him. "But—I can't call you here, without your mother knowing—and wondering—and worrying."

"But I could get out and telephone you," he argued, his face alight with the assurance I had given him. "They'll all be asleep by eleven o'clock, and the garage has an incline, so I can let the car slide down clear to the road out of hearing of the house before I start it, and the engine's pretty quiet when I come in, so they probably won't hear me at all. If you're sure it will be all right, what time could I telephone you at the Lansfield?"

"I'm seeing Mary at midnight," I said slowly, "but of course I have no idea how long it will be before she decodes the letter, if, as I suspect, Marion has used a code. Then, when I find out her answer, I shall have to telephone my father immediately—he was most insistent upon that. I don't think, Ronold, that it would be advisable to telephone me before two o'clock."

"May I then?" he asked eagerly.

"Of course," I answered. "But remember, say very little. I will try to make what I have to tell you very brief. And—remember that Marion is 'X', you are 'Y' and Mary is 'Z' when we are discussing the letter."

"I'll remember," he said, "and bless you for letting me telephone."

Danger for Ronald?

We had reached the door of my room, and he stooped and kissed me warmly as he left me.

"Everything will come out all right, Ronald," I said banally but sincerely as I closed the door. But while I busied myself into a dinner dress by the addition of daintily embroidered neck and sleeve accessories, and then saw to it that my suit case was in readiness for Ronald to take down stairs, I found that I was putting an ominous question to myself.

If Marion's code letter contained a clue to her whereabouts, should I be justified in having Ronald join in the—probably—dangerous rescue expedition we should at once inaugurate?

Family Friction Hard On Child

"Dear Dr. Myers: Not long ago much to my consternation I discovered that my twelve-year-old daughter was taking small sums of money out of my pocketbook. She has an allowance and a fairly comfortable home. We had quite a talk and she promised never to do such a thing again.

"However, I am wondering whether the strained relations existing between my husband and myself most of the time would lead her to commit this offense.

"I had the pleasure of attending the public forums you conducted in our city, on family problems, a few years ago and I believe you can help me. Will you please send me a list of the books on marriage and how to make a go of it. I enclose a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it."

The list was sent to this mother and she was answered personally, as all are who request it.

I wrote this mother: "The strained relations existing between you and your husband easily might cause your daughter to steal money. Indeed, unhappy father-mother relationships can cause all sorts of serious behavior and personality problems in children. What's more, it is hard to see how children can grow up happily and acquire wholesome moral character in a home of constant strained relations between the parents. As I have often said, the most essential relationship in the home, even so far as the child is concerned, is the father-mother relationship. And let us remember that lying and stealing—deceit in short—practically always begins at home.

Any parent who puts the welfare of his or her child first will be willing to make all sorts of sacrifices to win the other parent's affection, companionship and cooperation.

I have just read a most unusual autobiography of a bright college man serving sentence in a penitentiary. The most apparent contribution to this seemed to be the ceaseless strained relations between his distinguished father and mother. They neither loved him nor each other. It is easy to see how this boy was emotionally and morally unstable.

"The Authority on Authorities"

LITTLE HANDS ARE BIG

One of the greatest attractions of match point duplicate to its devotees is the fact that there are no "little" or "unimportant" hands. In this style of play, your points depend upon whether you do better or worse than other pairs with exactly the same cards. You can get just as fine a top score, in match points, by scoring 140 points on a deal which nets the others 110, as you can by being the only successful grand slam bidder on another deal. As a consequence, the best duplicate players are equally skillful with hands in which both sides have balanced strength as on those which show one side with an overwhelming superiority in strong cards.

	♠ 10 7 4 ♥ 10 8 4 3 ♦ K J 8 7 ♣ 6 3
♠ A 9 3 ♥ K 2 ♦ Q 4 3 2 ♣ A 10 8 7	N. W. E. S.	♠ 8 6 5 2 ♥ Q J 9 6 ♦ 10 ♣ K J 5 4
	♠ K Q J ♥ A 7 5 ♦ A 9 6 5 ♣ Q 9 2

(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♦	Dbl

When everybody passed that low bid, play began on one of the kind of deals that usually settles match point tournaments, because there are so many such hands. With no response from his partner, West decided the best thing to do was to try to beat the diamond bid by the defense indicated from the bidding. Considering North pleased with the diamonds, but weak in general, he counted on the declarer as probably trying to ruff out one or more losers. So he led his diamond 2.

South expected from this that East would have the Q, as under-lead of such a guarded honor by West might cost a trick. So he ducked in dummy. East of course put on the 10, and he won it with his A. To confuse the issue, he now led the spake K, followed by the Q, which West won with the A.

West then made the crucial lead, his diamond 3. South was sure now, after study, that East had the Q, probably doubleton, so tried to drop it by coming up with the K in dummy. That made it a sad story. As soon as he lost a trick then to West, the latter cashed the diamond Q and led his fourth diamond. That kept South from any ruffing at all, so he had to lose all told three tricks in clubs, two in hearts, one in diamonds and one in spades, seven in all, setting him two tricks and giving his opponents 200 points, a clear top on a deal which could not possibly produce that much on the offensive for either side.

If West, who had bid hearts, leads the diamond 6 against South's 6-Spades on this deal, how should the declarer play to make the contract?

CHAPTER XX

"These people are clever," Paul admitted. "They always have a legitimate front. That's why it's so hard to pin anything on them."

He opened a drawer of the desk. "Doesn't seem to be anything here . . . "

"Wait" Joan cried. "What's this?" She seized a gray glove lying among pencils and bits of papers. "This is Sybil's glove!" she said excitedly. "She always wore these with her suit, and she was wearing that suit the day she disappeared."

"It doesn't mean anything, I'm afraid, Joan, except that Karl and Mrs. Murdock are connected in some way with her disappearance." Suddenly his expression changed. "It could have another meaning, though it's not pleasant to think about."

"Tell me," she begged. "I want to know the truth."

Paul gazed speculatively at the slender gray glove. "It could mean that Sybil discovered this room, that she knew what was going on in here, and that's why Karl put her out of the way"

"That would explain her note, saying 'something terrible' had happened. But . . . " Joan's face was white, "in that case she must be dead"

"We may be wrong," Paul comforted, "but it seems logical that Sybil discovered this for herself. Perhaps she was on her way to the police when Karl stopped her."

Joan pressed the glove against her cheek. "Oh, Syb!" she wept.

"I still think Sybil is alive,' Paul said, "Karl is saving her as an ace up his sleeve. In that way she is of more use to him living than dead. Anyway, that's my hunch. It will be better if you can believe it, too."

"I'll try." Joan gulped, controlling herself with an effort.

Half an hour passed while Paul's nimble fingers explored the contents of drawer after drawer.

"If Sybil did find something incriminating here," he mused, "What was it? I wonder if there could be another room opening off this one."

He tapped the walls but they revealed nothing. It was Joan who cried, "Paul! Look at this desk. There's something odd about it."

* * *

There seemed to be a panel on the side of the desk. "You're right," Paul said, and gently forcing the wood, he pulled it to one side. "Here we are!" he said as they both gazed into a small hidden compartment. Eagerly Paul thrust in his hand and drew forth a large envelope. He opened it "Look Joan! These are the plans for that bombing plane. We were right!"

"How did they get here?" Joan asked. "Neither Karl nor Mrs. Murdock has been out of town."

"They are working with someone else."

"But Sybil couldn't have found these plans. When she disappeared they hadn't been stolen."

"Right. But seeing this radio equipment was enough to make her suspicious, and there may have been other incriminating evidence here." Again he reached into the secret compartment. "More papers— in German"

Joan peered over his shoulder at the unintelligible writing. "What do they say?"

Paul smiled excitedly as he ran his eyes over the pages. "Plenty! There's enough here to convict Karl and Mrs. Murdock as well as some others!"

"What do you mean? Who?

"Can't tell you yet. There are some things it's best for even you not to know."

"Oh Paul, please tell me!"

"Sorry, Joan. I can't do it You'll know when the time comes. But this information proves Karl and Mrs. Murdock are definitely involved in subversive activities. They even prove Karl shot Eric . . . all for 'the cause.' With these, Karl hasn't a chance"

"Now let's get out of here, quick," Joan begged, glancing back at the half-open panel which had admitted them.

"While we're here I'm going to take a last look around to see if I can find a copy of that code."

* * *

Joan watched his sleek brown head bent over the drawer. Paul was certainly worthy of admiration. Her heart went out to him in gratitude for his kindness

"This is really the end of our search then?" she asked.

"It looks like it."

"I wish we were out of here," Joan repeated. "I have a feeling something else is about to happen."

Paul laughed. "You women and your intuition!"

But Joan shivered nervously as she waited for Paul to finish.

In a downtown hotel, Karl Miller was dancing with Pat.

"You're a darling!" he murmured against her hair.

"Oh, Karl, I love you so much."

He smiled. "You are happy, liebchen?"

"I still can't believe it," Pat said, turning her radiant face to his. "Just think . . . Mrs. Karl Miller."

"We can't be married for two or three months yet," Karl told her.

"I don't care. I'm so happy." Pat gazed down at the emerald, a magnificent jewel which flashed green fire from her hand. "It's such a beautiful ring! Joan will be so surprised."

"No doubt," Karl smiled.

"And Paul too?"

"Paul? Why should Paul be surprised?"

The music had stopped now and they returned to their table.

"What has Paul got to do with us?" Karl demanded.

Pat looked embarrassed. She had promised not to reveal Paul's identity under any circumstances. "Oh, nothing" she faltered.

But Karl was not to be sidetracked. "What is there between you and Paul?"

Pat laughed. "Are you jealous?"

"Jealous? Of course I am. I insist upon knowing."

"I promised I wouldn't tell anyone," Pat hesitated.

Karl's voice was smoothly persuasive. "But, liebchen, we are going to be married. You must not have any secrets from your husband."

Pat's brown eyes were troubled. "Well, I don't know."

Karl took her hand, "You must tell me," he insisted.

"I suppose now that we are engaged, it's different," Pat admitted, "Anyway it's really nothing for you to be jealous about. You see, Paul is my brother. He's using an assumed name because some time ago he used to work for the government."

"Indeed?" Karl Miller said, rising quickly. "I find that information extremely interesting."

It seemed to Joan that Paul was taking an unnecessarily long time looking for the code. She watched impatiently as he rechecked each drawer, wondering at his calm deliberation.

"Please hurry, Paul! Let's get out of here."

"Queer I can't find it. They must have it here somewhere."

"What does it mater now? We have the other evidence. You said these papers incriminate Karl. Isn't that enough?"

"I always like to do a thorough job while I'm at it."

"Wait! Oh Paul, I hear something! Someone is coming down the hall!"

She ran to the open panel and gazed through the office to the hallway leading to the street, but she could see nothing."

"You're just nervous," Paul said. "I'll be through in a minute. Sit down and relax."

"I'm sure I heard someone. What if Karl has found out?" Joan said, sitting down at the desk where Sybil's glove remained among the pile of papers.

"He's too clever to let us get away with this."

"Karl's not as clever as you may imagine," Paul told her, "or he wouldn't leave these papers for me to find."

"It all seems too easy," Joan insisted. "There must be a catch to it."

"We've waited long enough to get Karl," he reminded her. "I knew that eventually we'd catch up with him. Haven't you ever heard that crime does not pay?" He actually seemed amused.

"I don't see anything funny about it!"

"You're a sweet kid!" Paul said. "And you've been a big help to me."

"Please let's get out of here!" She was on the verge of tears.

* * *

Paul glanced around the small room. Papers were strewn on the floor, even carelessly over the radio equipment.

"This untidy mess will be quite a surprise to our friends," he commented.

"Are we going to the authorities now?"

Paul picked up the envelope. "Right. And in here we have enough to keep Karl Miller out of circulation for good."

Joan took Sybil's glove and put it in her purse, but before she could fasten the clasp, Karl Miller's voice came to them from the open panel.

"I thought I'd find you here."

His powerful figure filled the small doorway. He held a gun. Paul reached for his coat, but Karl was too quick for him. "No use trying that, Mr. O'Malley."

Joan backed against the wall, her eyes fastened, as though hypnotized, upon Karl's face.

"You need not be frightened," Karl told her. "I am principally interested in Paul. Too bad he has such a talkative sister."

"So Pat told you?"

Joan marveled at Paul's indifference.

"Yes. She told me, after a little persuasion. It might interest you to know that she thinks I am about to become your brother-in-law."

At last Paul's anger was aroused. "You dirty rat!"

Karl smiled. "I assure you I have no intention of going through with it. As you no doubt know, I already have one wife."

"What have you done with her?" Paul demanded.

"Shut up! Give me that envelope. We're getting out of here. Come on, Joan, I'll keep you with me."

Paul walked ahead and Karl followed with Joan. His grasp on her arm was painful but she did not wince. She was too proud to let Karl Miller see that he had hurt her.

Joan thought she could have endured anything better than the silence that followed on that long ride down the Embareadero. Neither Karl nor Paul spoke. A chauffeur was driving, probably one of Karl's henchmen, though Joan did not remember having seen him before. The steel of Karl's automatic was a silent reminder of the futility of trying to escape. Pier after pier flashed by as the car roared to its destination. Joan was not surprised when they arrived at the familiar dock where she had been before—the first time when Karl took her there and delivered a package aboard a freighter, the second time when he sent her alone on a similar mission.

As they went through the warehouse and up the swaying steps of the gangplank, Joan was surprised at her own calmness. She was no longer afraid of Karl Miller. Her hatred of him overcame her fear. She followed Paul's example of superb indifference.

On deck Paul and Joan were led to a small shabby cabin, and the door locked behind them.

"Cozy?" Paul grinned.

"Paul! You act as though you actually enjoy this."

His face grew serious. "I don't like it for your sake, Joan. But so far as I'm concerned, it couldn't have worked out better."

"What do you mean?"

"I counted on Karl's finding us at the beauty shop. I wanted him to. I think he'll lead us to the rest of the gang this way."

Joan sat down gingerly on a dirty, faded chintz chair. "But you said those papers were enough."

The Retail Merchants Assn.,

Gentlemen:

I wish you would consider Miss Mary Smith as a prospect for a prize in the Sam Vining Sales contest. Her number is 1134.

I went into the Blank store on Thursday, April 10, to purchase a hat. I looked at several and finally selected one. The clerk expressed her opinion that she, too, thought the hat was becoming to me. Then she suggested that I try on one more she had in mind. I did, and it was just the hat that I had been looking for.

I sincerely appreciated her helpfulness and I think Miss Smith is deserving of a prize

Very truly yours,
Mrs. John Doe,
432 Smith Street,
